Lancaster Farmland Preservation Reaches 10,000-Acre Milestone

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.)—Ten thousand acres of farmland has been preserved in Lancaster County. And county government and preservation officials came out to a beautiful farm setting in West Donegal Township. Thursday morning to unroll a banner that said so. The background for the concave of officials at the corner of Garber and Stone Mill roads, was the Henry and Gene Garber farms that are part of 1,000 contiguous acres in preserve in the area.

"This milestone is a testimony to the desire of Lancaster County landowners to maintain some of the world's finest farmland in agriculture use," said Tom Daniels, executive director of the Lancaster County Preserve Board. "The effectiveness of our public/private partnership is shown by this success."

Alan Musselman, executive director of Lancaster Farmland Trust, said, "This is a wonderful day, a milestone representing commitment. And yet, we see only the begining. While Lancaster Farmland Trust remains in its infancy and today celebrates its third anniversary, we have become one of the most successful farmland preservation trusts in the nation. Our thanks go to farmers who have made permanent commiments to the preservation of this rich land."

Survey Will Show If, How Wells Are Contaminated

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A vast survey to pinpoint if and how underground well water is contaminated may have far-reaching effects.

The survey, undertaken by the Lancaster Co. Conservation District and funded by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, will examine farms, industry, and homes in the Pequea-Mill Creek Watershed in south central Lancaster County. The results of the survey will be released at the end of the year.

Random interviews

Using tax parcel maps, persons hired by the conservation district will conduct interviews on a random basis. The United States Geological Survey (USGS) will conduct about 200 water tests (each costing about $340) to identify exactly what kinds of pesticides at what concentrations may be contaminating well water in the area.

The tests will determine if water quality concerns from pesticides exist in the area. The officials will try to determine if the contamination, if it is occuring, is coming

While the second cutting of alfalfa may be stunted because of dry weather and the corn is curling in want of moisture, barley, on the other hand, produced a bumper crop of grain — up to 100 bushels per acre.

In the photo, David Landis bales bright fluffy barley straw Monday afternoon on Atlantic Breeders Cooperative Farm along Route 30 west of Lancaster at Landisville. Landis said the first load in the morning worked best. Later in the day, the straw was so dry, the baler didn't work as well.

Potato Bug Beater Demonstrated In Lehigh County

ROBERT LEIBY
Lehigh Co. Agent

GERMANSVILLE (Lehigh Co.) — One hundred fifty people came out to Handwerk Potato Farm in northern Lehigh County to see alternative Colorado potato beetle control practices. A four-row "Bug Beater" potato bug vacuum, manufactured by Sukup Manufacturing of Sheffield, Iowa, was demonstrated. The rear-mounted unit was powered by a 95-horsepower tractor. The Bug Beater moved down the row at approximately three miles per hour. Steel fans over a shroud passed over each plant; insect, dirt and small stones were pulled up into the unit. The insects met their demise in what Sukup Technician Tom Johnson described as similar to a bug hitting the windshield of a car moving 90 miles per hour.

The Bug Beater raised quite a cloud causing concern that neighbors near farms might object to the excessive dust. Also, growers were advised by County Agent Bob Leiby that the soil compaction effects would need to be considered as well as fuel consumption and economics.

The Bug Beater was able to suck many of the adult and large larvae from the potato plants on the Handwerk Farm. Newly-hatched larvae were more difficult for the machine to remove. The machine could be only used early in the potato growing season. The size of the vines limits the machine's use.

Potato grower Wally Frisch, suggested the Bug Beater might be modified to be more effective

Dairy Science Club Seeks Lion Classic Consignments

STATE COLLEGE, (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Dairy Science Club and the Pennsylvania Holstein Association will hold their eighth annual Nittany Lion Fall Classic consignment sale on Friday, November 2. The Fall Classic functions as an educational activity for Dairy Science Club members and provides a market for quality Holstein cattle. Students gain first-hand experience selecting, evaluating, and merchandising dairy cattle. Club members learn about animal and arena preparation, publicity, and the financial aspects of a consignment sale. Last year 55 lots averaged $1768 with a top price of $7,500.

This year's sale committee chairmen include: Tom Wiker, Holtwood, overall chairman; Dave Lentz, Lebanon, assistant chairman; Bob Mowry, Roaring Springs; and Duane Stoltzfus, Morgantown, selections; Tom McCauley, Elizabethtown, animal preparation; Terri Packard, Troy, advertising; Beth Cooley, Allenwood, publicity; Matt Wanner, Narvon, arena preparation; Vinton Smith, Greenville, finance; and Lori Benner, State College, reception.

The Selection Committee, consisting of 10-12 members, is beginning to visit farms and select animals. They plan to select approximately 60-70 springing heifers and young cows. In addition, a select group of top pedigreed calves will be sold. If you are interested in consigning an animal, please call the PHA office, (814) 234-0364, and ask for Tom Wiker or Jeff Harding. The Penn State Dairy Science Club and the Pennsylvania Holstein Association appreciate your support of this important educational activity.

Report Contaminants In Standard Units

American Agri-Women members are seeking support to help clarify residue reporting by government agencies. Letters have been sent to Secretary of Agriculture Edward Madigan, Environmental Protection Agency Administrator, William Reilly, and to Food and Drug Administration Commissioner, David Kessler.

Claiming that much of the hysteria created by the so called "public interest" groups is fueled by misunderstood scientific data. AAW is asking the heads of these agencies to rule in favor of uniform reporting of residues.

"We're indeed fortunate to live in a society of advanced scientific techniques", says Sandy Greiner, American Agri-Women President, "but, unfortunately, this technology that enables today's scientists to locate the proverbial 'needle in a haystack' often causes unnecessary alarm in the public".

Ten years ago, residues and impurities were routinely reported in parts per million (ppm). Today, these same studies can determine parts per billion (ppb), parts per trillion (ppt), and in some cases parts per quadrillion (ppq).

Reporting all findings in the same units of measure will lessen any confusion among consumers, and will allow everyone to have better perspective of what is reported, according to Greiner.

Seldom do changes occur in government without some expense to the taxpayer. This request is an exception, says Greiner, an Iowa farm woman.

American Agri-Women members are not asking that current data be updated immediately, only that all further studies and updates be reported in similar units of measure.

USDA, EPA, and FDA are all involved in reporting food and water contaminants in some way. The reporting of tolerances is done in varying units of measurement. As technology has advanced, making it possible to detect parts per billion or parts per trillion, in some cases even parts per quadrillion, consistent, measurements have not been used. This has resulted in reports which are very confusing to the general public.

Few people understand the difference between 10 parts per million and 10 parts per billion, although it is great and quite significant when we are talking about contaminants in our food and water. If all reporting were done in a standard unit, the reports would be much more easily understood and more relevant to all interested. Comparisons and changes could be much more easily discerned. Statistics would become more meaningful for interpreting the significance of the presence of contaminants and for determining policy needs and directions.

As a result, consumers would have a clearer picture of levels of food and water contaminants. Even if contaminants were reported in parts per billion, as opposed to parts per million (some may feel that parts per million doesn't go far enough), it would be beneficial to society since it would make these reports easier to understand.

To Practice Good Management

Dr. Robert Owen, Penn State Veterinary Science Department, stated at the June Poultry Health and Management Seminar nothing replaces good management for animal performance.

I believe this is true for all phases of agriculture. Pesticides, antibiotics, computers, equipment, improved genetics, and animal and plant nutrition formulations are some of the tools available to today's farmers to improve their farming operations.

However, for these tools to be effective, you need to continue to practice good management practices. These practices include following a good soil and water conservation program; providing animals with clean housing, water and feed; planting and harvesting crops on time; and paying attention to details. By practicing good management you will improve the profitability of your farm operation while presenting a good image of agriculture to your non-farm neighbors.

To Support Local Businesses

Every year we hear about rural people buying worthless products and services from door-to-door or telephone solicitions. These range from painting the barn, coating the driveway, cheap pesticides, to miracle products that cure aliments or improve animal or crop performance.

Be very cautious when doing business with people you do not know. Before buying, ask for references and contact them, request research data conducted at land grant universities, find out how long they have been in business, and do not buy on testimonials.

My best advice is to do business with local businesses and businesses you know. By dealing with people you know, you know the type of service to expect and they are there to follow up on any problems.

The success of any community is small independent businesses supporting each other. With each farmer being a small independent businessman, it only makes sense to do business locally whenever possible. By keeping the money in the community, everyone benefits.

To Clean Up Around the Farm

It is amazing that, even in dry weather, the weeds continue to grow. Now is a good time to mow around buildings, fence rows, and roads. By controling weeds, we are reducing breeding and living areas for insects and rodents.

Also, weed control will improve ventilation around your buildings, especially naturally ventilated barns. Now is also a good time to do a good general house cleaning and making necessary building repairs.

During this house cleaning, properly dispose of items that you no longer need or use. Make sure all chemicals are properly stored in their original containers and placed out of reach of children and animals.

Clean up around buildings and make necessary repairs. By keeping an attractive appearance outside your buildings, you are presenting a positive image of agriculture and building goodwill for your products while reducing complaints from neighbors.

Farm Forum

The crisis that is facing area dairy farmers will finally receive national attention on Tuesday, June 18. This is the day the U.S. House of Representatives Subcommittee on Livestock, Poultry and Dairy will conduct a hearing in Washington, D.C. The committee will receive testimony concerning various supply management programs being proposed by various groups.

The hearing is being held under the guidelines of the 1990 Farm Bill. The results of the hearings will be incorporated into proper legislation that will be presented

CREATING YOUR OWN OBSTACLES

June 16, 1991

Background Scripture: Ezra 4:1-6; 5 through 6.
Devotional Reading: Isaiah 66: 1-14.

When I first read the scripture passages for this week, I determined to write a column about overcoming obstacles. But, then I had to go for an appointment and I thought about this scripture portion on the way to and from that appointment. The more I thought about it, the more I decided that this scripture speaks to me most about not creating your own obstacles in the first place.

For that's what the returned exiles of Israel did: they triggered the opposition of their neighbors to the rebuilding of the temple of Jerusalem. These neighbors were Samaritans, many of them the descendants of foreigners who were resettled in the land of Israel after the Assyrians conquered Israel in 722 B.C. Racially, they were a mixed group. When they learned that the Jews intended to rebuild the temple, they came, offering: "Let us build with you; for we worship your God as you do, and we have been sacrificing to him ever since the days of Esarhaddon king of Assyria who brought us here" (4:2b).

A RUDE SHOCK

The response of the Jews must have come as a rude shock to the Samaritans. Ezra tells us that the Jewish leaders, Zerubbabel, Jeshua and others replied: "You have nothing to do with us in building a house to our God; but we alone will build to the Lord, the God of Israel, as King Cyrus, the king of Persia has commanded us" (4:3b). That doesn't leave any room for negotiation: "nothing to do with us," "we alone will build..."

It is true that these returned exiles thought that this was what God wanted. Ezra and Nehemiah both were fanatics on the subject of racial purity. They wanted to have nothing to do whatsoever with foreigners. They were God's chosen people.

A DIFFERENT VIEW

At the same time, there was another radically opposing view that can be found in the Old Testament, too—the view of the Book of Ruth in which a foreigner, Ruth, becomes the heroine and great grandmother of King David. It is believed that this book was written around the same time as the books of Ezra and Nehemiah, to whose views it was diametrically opposed.

The reaction of the Samaritans is no more than we might expect: "Then the people of the land (the Samaritans) discouraged the people of Judah, and made them afraid to build, and hired counselors against them to frustrate their purpose, all the days of Cyrus king of Persia, even until the reign of Darius king of Persia" (4:4). This hostility which the Jews brought upon themselves long delayed the rebuilding of the temple and kept this dispute alive into the time of Jesus

So, the trouble they faced when they returned to Jerusalem was largely of their own making. How often do you and I create our own obstacles?

A SALUTE TO DAIRYMEN. EVERY MONTH IS DAIRY MONTH WITH US.

In June a lot of people pay tribute to dairy farmers because it's National Dairy Month.

At Hamilton Bank, we feel you deserve credit a lot more often than that. Managing a successful dairy operation requires working capital all year round. So we're here to help you meet your capital requirements whenever you need us.

Dairy is the major agricultural enterprise in Pennsylvania and accounts for 29 percent of the total agricultural production value. The total annual volume of dairy production for our seven-county area is $474 million. This represents 32 percent of the yearly production for Pennsylvania. Now that's a record you can point to with pride, and we're proud to be able to help – any way, any time. At Hamilton Bank, every month is dairy month!

PCC Summer Youth Institute Set June 23-26

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — This year marks the 30th anniversary of the longest running educational program sponsored jointly by the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives (formerly the PA Association of Farmer Cooperatives) and Penn State University.

The Summer Youth Institute is a four-day program for high school students. It is designed to enhance participants knowledge of, and appreciation for the importance of cooperatives in the American business system. This goal is achieved by having the scholars interact with speakers and participate in activities such as a mini-cooperative.

Leadership abilities are also recognized as the scholar participants take leadership roles during the institute. They run the mini-cooperative, introduce the various speakers, and can participate in a speaking session entitled "Your Viewpoint." Other program highlights include the Institute Chorus, being part of the daily news team, and a parking lot square dance.

The 1991 PCC Summer Youth Institute will be held at Shippensburg University from June 23-26th. Speakers that will be featured include Harry Roth, General Manager of Atlantic Breeders Cooperative; Lewis Gardner, President of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative; Anita Leitzel, Activities Coordinator for the Pennsylvania Rural Electric Association; Paul Easton from Youngstown, Ohio; Laura England, Communications Manager for Atlantic Dairy Cooperative; and, Steve Crawford, Executive Director, PA House of Representatives Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee.

Other activities for the 1991 PCC Summer Youth Institute include a parade of co-op careers, a tour of nearby Knouse Foods Cooperative for second-year scholars, and the popular Institute Pursuit contest.

For more information about the PCC Summer Youth Institute, contact Donald Robinson, Youth Director (717) 354-4525, or Carol Buckhout, PCC Executive Director (814) 231-3010.

PFA Opposes Water Use Fees For Farmers

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — The Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) is opposing attempts by the Susquehanna River Basin Commission to assess water use fees on farmers.

The Commission, which regulates water use in the three states containing the Susquehanna River Basin, has proposed a fee schedule to defray its costs for reviewing applications and monitoring compliance of water projects

The fees would be assessed on projects involving diversion of water, surface water withdrawals, hydroelectric projects, stream encroachments, consumptive water uses and groundwater withdrawals. The fees would be based either on the project's cost or water consumption rate and would range from $100 for all ground water withdrawal projects to $12,000 for projects consuming more than one million gallons of water per day.

The Susquehanna River Basin Commission has been informed that, "The Pennsylvania Farmers' Association has in the past and will continue to oppose any attempt by agencies to assess water use fees on agriculture."

In a letter to Richard Cairo, Secretary of the Susquehanna River Basin Commission, on May 20, 1991, Bill Adams, PFA's Director of Natural Resources, said, "Water used for farming is intermittent and not a consumptive use. If anything, farmland filters and recharges underground water supplies. "PFA has also alerted the New York and Maryland farm bureaus about the commission's proposals for water project application fees.

In addition, PFA is questioning the commission's need for the fees and its proposal to exempt state agencies from payment of the fees.

PFA is a voluntary, general farm organization representing over 23,000 families. It is affiliated with the nation's largest general farm organization, the 3.9-million member American Farm Bureau Federation.

Wednesday June 26 Is Sundae In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA — Has the heat gotten to you? Then cool off with everyone's favorite dessert at "Everyday is Sundae" on Wednesday, June 26th, 11:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m., on the Judge Lewis Quadrangle in Philadelphia's Independence Mall (Market Street, between 5th and 6th Streets). Just think of it. All the ice cream you can eat, and it's FREE. Rain date is June 27th.

Ice cream is America's number one dessert and almost everyone has a favorite flavor among the more than 2,000 available. Have you ever wondered how your personal favorite flavor matches up with the choice of the stars?

Coffee ice cream drizzled with a warm homemade butterscotch sauce is the favorite dessert of which one of our nation's 41 presidents? That's right, President George Bush, the man who hates broccoli, loves his ice cream.

Vanilla is the first choice for what veteran country western singer? Would you believe it's the man in black -- Johnny Cash? Frozen vanilla yogurt makes Kathy Mattea one of the country's top female vocalists and chocolate almond keeps Vince Gill's tunes rising on the charts.

What flavors titillate the taste buds of some other well-known celebrities? It was love at first bite for one of America's favorite leading men. Burt Reynolds' longtime sweetheart is honey vanilla. It's a dish of rum raisin that helps jazz great Grover Washington, Jr., keep in rhythm.

What about the big-hitters of baseball? For the former Phillies third baseman Mike Schmidt, the man who led his team in career home runs and runs batted in, it's a bowl of cookies 'n' cream. What powers the Baltimore Orioles Ironman of Baseball, Cal Ripken? It's a triple dip cone of vanilla.

Can you match these favorite flavors with the right Philadelphia celebrity? Mocha chocolate chip or plain chocolate, which is the favorite of Philly Pops conductor Pete Nero and which one is savored by Pat Ciarrocchi, co-host of KYW-TV's Evening Magazine? Nero enjoys a large cone of rich chocolate, while Ciarrocchi picks the mocha chocolate chip.

Whatever your favorite ice cream flavor is, start celebrating July as National Ice Cream Month early at "Everyday is Sundae" on June 26th. Top ice cream companies will be introducing some new flavors, along with some old favorites, to the nearly 20,000 ice cream lovers expected to turn out for this annual event.

Country 92.5 WXTU-FM, the official radio station to "Everyday is Sundae," proudly presents The Ariel Caten Band. On-air personalities will be on site with prizes and lots of great music. While you enjoy your favorite tunes, feast on Haagen-Dazs, Bassett's, Friendly's, Breyer's (distributed by Kraft Dairy Group), Turkey Hill, Mid-Atlantic, Jack & Jill, Matt's, Uncle Bill's Frozen Yogurt from Rosenberger's Dairy, and Cloister ice cream, frozen yogurt and ice cream novelties, smothered with either chocolate or strawberry syrup provided by Hershey Chocolate, U.S.A.

Or, you can enjoy an ice cream sundae topped with Mayberrys Fun Chips, distributed by Richardson Brands, Inc. If a dish of ice cream doesn't satisfy your sweet tooth, a thick creamy, old-fashioned root beer ice cream float made with Barq's Root Beer, distributed in the Delaware Valley by the Philadelphia Coca-Cola Bottling Company, surely will. To wash it all down, pure and refreshing spring water will be on tap from the Ephrata Diamond Spring Water Company.

The Delaware Valley College is providing a live cow and calf to show children of all ages just where milk comes from for the ice cream they love so very much.

"Everyday is Sundae" is sponsored by the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA). MAMMA advertises and promotes milk and dairy products on behalf of some 5,000 farm families of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, Virginia and West Virginia. MAMMA is the regional affiliate of the American Dairy Association.

Farmland Dairies Sues New York, Ties Up Dairymen's Money

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

BATAVIA, N.Y. — Farmland Dairies has recently filed suit in federal court against the commissioner of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets over over-order milk payments.

In a civil action filed May 30 in the United States District Court in the southern district of New York, attornies for Farmland Dairies, of New Jersey, has claimed that laws recently created to increase payments to New York dairymen for milk and allow for protection of those farmers are not constitutional.

It is not known what effect the outcome of the suit would have on the ability of Pennsylvania's Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) to set over-order minimums. The action is currently being studied by legal advisors for the PMMB. However, Pennsylvania's price-setting policies are different.

An eight-page civil action seeking more than $50,000 in damages was filed by Andrew Wittenstein, of Friedman, Wittenstein and Hochman, attorneys for Farmland.

The suit claims that recent amendments to New York's Agriculture and Markets law are violations of interstate commerce provisions in the U.S. Constitution.

On May 2, New York Mayor Mario Cuomo signed into law legislation which gave authority to the agriculture commissioner, Richard McGuire, to raise the minimum price for milk paid to New York farmers above the federal order minimum, in response to reduced federal support and low milk prices.

Also, the new law gave the commissioner authority to create a compensatory price to be paid by milk handlers who market out-of-state milk within New York.

Under the compensatory price provision, when Farmland, or any other interstate milk buyers, purchase out-of-state milk to sell in New York, they must pay to the New York agriculture department the difference between the New York price and the out-of-state price.

That provision was included to prevent buyers of raw milk from purposefully cutting back on purchases of milk intented for sale in New York from certain areas in favor of buying milk at lower cost produced in adjacent states. The provision guarantees that the retail milk price paid by New York consumers is ultimately passed on to the state's dairymen.

Because of the suit, compensatory payments are not going to farmers, however. That money is being held in escrow until the matter is settled.

Pennsylvania does not require compensatory payments for milk from other states being sold within the commonwealth.

On May 9, McGuire hiked the minimum rates for New York milk to $13.85 for Class I (fluid) milk and $10.30 for Class II and III.

On May 23, he issued an Interim Milk Pricing Order which enacted the compensatory price provision of the new law.

Farmland Dairies, based in Wallington, N.J., is a major milk buyer which has two subsidiaries, Fairlawn Dairies Inc., and Fairdale Dairies Inc.

According to the lawsuit, Fairdale purchases raw milk from dairymen in New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania and processes it at its New Jersey plant for distribution under the name of Farmland and Farmdale in stores along the East Coast, including New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and others.

In its suit, Farmland Dairies attornies have said that because of the new payment schedule, "In effect, the defendant (McGuire) has imposed customs duties, equal to the price differential, upon non-New York milk entering the New York market."

Furthermore, the suit states that the actions by McGuire "violate the Commerce Clause of the United States Constitution, Article I, Setion 8, Clause 3."

And, the suit claims that "The defendant (McGuire), acting under color of state law, has deprived Farmland of its rights . . . "

The suit asks the federal court to prevent the New York commissioner from being able to set the above order prices, because "Farmland will be irreparably harmed . . . "

Specifically, in the suit, Farmland asks the court to declare that the amendment violates the Constitution; violates other federal regulations; and to issue a permanent order that would stop the commissioner from attempting to collect the compensatory payments.

The suit also asks for New York to pay for Farmland's attorneys' fees and any other compensation that the court would deem proper.

Member Services Update

Heifer Management System

The new Heifer Management System introduced in January has been received with enthusiasm. Many of the 188 members who have signed on to this service have expressed nothing short of rave reviews for its flexibility, low cost, convenience and wealth of information on replacement stock. If you would like information about it, please call Dixie or Dean at 800-344-8378.

ARIS Usage

Since its introduction three years ago, the ARIS electronic on-line service has grown into an important service for both members and the people serving them. Through April 1991, there were 186 active ARIS accounts, which does not seem impressive. However, those accounts are working with 1,233 separate DHIA herds whose records are being accessed via ARIS.

Of all these herds, 5% are being accessed by members, 42% by veterinarians, 52% by consultants and the rest by extension, or other professionals.

If you wish information on ARIS, please call 800-344-8378 adn ask for Louise.

Computer Invoicing

If plans progress as hoped direct members of PA DHIA will soon be seeing computer generated invoices for all services purchased monthly. .The days of supervisors needing to calculate the monthly bill at the farm will be past. In fact, members will know how much their services for the following month will cost them when their reports are returned to them because next month's invoice will be included.

Details of this improvement will be included with the first mailing of computer generated invoices later this year.

ProStaph I Update

Penn State research was completed late last year and a new decision tree for screening herds for Staph. aureus mastitis is shown below. The research confirms that ProStaph I screening is highly accurate for negative cows, but is less accurates for positive cows.

Members should work closely with their veterinarians when making decisions about using ProStaph screening.

DECISION TREE

PA DHIA's and Penn State University's Decision Tree for Solving Staph. aureus Mastitis Problems Using the Pro Staph I Analysis

This procedure should be used only under the advice and consultation of your veterinary practitioner.

If you suspect a Staph. aureus Problem exists:

1. CULTURE 10 cows or 10% of the herd that have SCC linear score > or = 4.0.
   - If you get POSITIVE culture results of a significant degree
   - 2. If you get NEGATIVE culture results for Staph. aureus.
     - Search for another cause of mastitis.
3. TEST all milking animals with Pro Staph I.
4. SEGREGATE Pro Staph Positive Cows from Suspect and Negative Cows.

4A. CULTURE all Pro Staph positive cows to confirm Staph. aureus infection.

(1) TREAT culture positive cows in consultation with veterinarian

(2) MOVE culture-negative cows to the suspect/ negative group.

4B. MANAGE Suspect and Negative Cows using good mastitis prevention practices (don't assume that some other problem does not exist).

5. MONITOR percent of new infections on PA DHIA SCC Management Report each month. (Newly infected animals are those whose SCC linear score is 4.0 or higher for the first time during the current lactation.)

CURRENT INFECTION STATUS

First Lactation						Second(+) Lactation

If PERCENTAGE DECREASES or stays the same, continue monitoring monthly.

Democrats' Offer Spending For Ag, No Plan To Pay

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Democrats in the state House of Representatives last week approved a $13.84 billion 1991-92 state spending proposal that attempts to protect agricultural programs.

However, neither the House, nor the Senate has yet to propose a method for paying for the spending.

The appropriations proposal was not acted on by the Republican-led Senate before they adjourned session on Wednesday. The Senate is scheduled to resume session Monday.

In the meantime, Gov. Robert Casey, a Democrat, had said earlier that if he does not have a budget proposal to sign into law by today, it will delay paying for programs in the new fiscal year.

A spokesperson for Casey said that the governor did not threaten to shut down the state, although several officials in Harrisburg have said that is the message they understood from the context of a public statement Casey made.

Sue Grimm, budget spokeperson for the Casey adminstration, said that Casey "requested" the Legislature to have a balanced budget for signing by today, so that the Casey administration can quickly sell tax anticipation notes in order to have money in July to pay for several ongoing state programs.

Two of those programs had payments due by June 30, but are legally being delayed.

Not counting more than $400 million in delayed payments, Grimm said the projected June 30 state deficit is $475 million.

Others have said the actual deficit is closer to $1 billion.

The payments being delayed consist of $200 million owed during 1990-91 to the state's school districts, and another $200 million owed to the school and state employees' retirement funds. Grimm said that because those payments can legally be delayed until July, they are not counted as a deficit for the current year.

The administration's method of determining current debt has been an issue of controversy among state political leaders.

Although the standard accounting practice of most businesses and local governments is to use what are known as Generally Approved Accounting Practices (GAAP), the Casey administration does not employ those techinques in determining the state's fiscal status.

"Cash flow decisions are made day-by-day," Grimm said.

This is the second year in a row that the Casey administration, using unusual accounting methods, has delayed paying to the school and state employees retirement funds.

Last year, after delaying 1989-90 payment into the retirement fund, Casey said he actually ended the year with a surplus of funds.

However, although the Casey administration does not use GAAP in practice, the Office of the Governor does prepare a report of previous year's budget using GAAP.

In January, the state Auditor General's office announced the results of an audit of the governor's financial report on the 1989-90 state budget. The report declared a $421.2 million deficit, instead of the surplus that Casey said he had prior to re-election in November.

Within two months of re-election, Casey said the state was in financial trouble and began a series of actions to cut back on spending. Some of those actions have been rejected in court, such as requiring appointed officials to give up a portion of their salary.

Most appointed officials received a raise last year, set by law made several years ago.

"What the commonwealth needs to do is issue tax anticipation notes. And they take a minimum of two weeks to process and to market," she said.

Although in recent history, no governor has made such a request in the name of protecting future cash flows, Grimm said, "There's never been a year like this. Extraordinary times require these types of actions," she said.

However, when pressed to compare the situation to the recession of the late 1970s, or the Great Depression, Grimm said she could not, but maintained that the economy was to blame for the need for an early budget.

Democrats' Budget

Nevertheless, the House Democrats' appropriations bill currently before the Senate does restore levels of spending almost to 1990 levels.

That is a restoration from a February budget proposal by Gov. Casey. In his proposal, Casey had severe cuts for agriculture, in addition to other agencies.

The vote in the House on their spending plan was 105 to 95 with the minority House Republicans being shut out.

The spending plan is a $300 million increase from the proposal by Gov. Casey.

The House budget proposal provides for almost $5.5 million for the state Animal Health Commission for diagnostic services, research, testing and vaccinations.

The Animal Health Commission is an amalgam of animal health and diagnostic programs which had been combined under the umbrella authority of the commission. Several additional areas of responsibility have been added.

Overall, when the separate programs were combined last year, the total funding had been reduced.

The $5.5 million level represents an almost $4 million increase of funding beyond that amount allocated when the programs were combined.

Steve Crawford, executive director of the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee, said the proposal "finally gives resources to (the Commission so it can) improve the animal health and diagnostic system in the state."

The House Democrats' proposed spending package also includes wording that would authorize a new position on the commission — that of executive director.

The position is not desired by some.

"That has us a little worried," said Shelia Miller, executive director of the Senate Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee.

Miller said last week that it will take some analysis of the budget bill and any subsequent spending plans which may come later from the House before any reasonable comment could be made as to the soundness of the proposal.

According to Crawford, the proposal by the House includes:

- total restoration of funds for research to Penn State and an increase in funds to the extension service;
- more money for the soil conservation commission and the conservation districts in anticipation of a nutrient management bill.

Sec. Wolff Hosts NEASDA Conference

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff hosted the summer conference of the Northeastern Association of State Departments of Agriculture (NEASDA) that concluded last week in Harrisburg.

Wolff, who has served as NEASDA president for the past year, said the big issues during the 1991 meeting were farmland preservation, wetlands and environmental challenges for agriculture during the 1990s.

"It's very helpful for agricultural leaders from the Northeast to get together and talk about common concerns and projects," Wolff said.

"It's especially important that we communicate and work together in overseas marketing efforts and in our dealings with the federal government. Agricultural efforts no longer recognize state lines, so regulators have to communicate and coordinate activities."

NEASDA is the Northeastern component of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture (NASDA), a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization comprised of the 50 state departments of agriculture and those from the territories of Puerto Rico, Guam, American Samoa and the Virgin Islands.

Researchers Have Few Answers To Perplexing Broiler Disease

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — It's a disease that frustrates the poultry producer because there is no known cause or cure.

It's called "ascites syndrome," (pronounced AY-sites), and can infect up to 30 percent of a fast growing broiler flock, causing a painful death for the bird and substantial losses for the producer.

Scientists know little about the syndrome. At this time, researchers at Penn State are looking into how poultry management techniques — including breeding, feeding, and housing the birds — promote the syndrome.

Producers should be aware that the disease is caused by a combination of genetics and the environment of the bird. This includes a lack of quality air and cold temperatures, and how vacinnation, feeding, and overall care of the birds combine to induce the syndrome.

Not caused by virus

It's not caused by a bacteria or virus, according to Dr. Robert Owen, D.V.M., dept. of veterinary science at Penn State. Owen spoke to 25 broiler producers, equipment manfacturers, and other industry representatives Monday at the Poultry Management and Health Seminar.

The disease was first identified 30 years ago by poultry farmers in the mountains of Mexico. High atmospheric conditions promote the syndrome. Figures for U.S. losses from ascites have not yet been measured. But according to Owen, in 1984, losses in Mexico reached $40 million.

And, Owen said, he has seen ascites syndrome in Pennsylvania flocks, and the problem is growing. In addition, the disease has changed in the last 10 years, said Owen. It was a disease first seen primarily in male broilers raised in high altitudes, and it is still confined to male broilers — but at all altitudes.

Signs of disease

Clinical signs of the disease include the following:

- Dyspnea, or difficulty breathing. Birds are constantly gasping for air.
- Cyanosis, a blue appearance, rather than a healthy pink appearance of the legs and comb of the bird. This is caused by poor oxygenation of the blood.
- Recumbency, meaning the birds are down and don't want to get back up.
- Abdominal distension — the bird's abdomen can be very grossly dilated by fluid, which accumulates in the abdomen.

Owen said that the laboratory finds up to about 200 cc of yellowish, amber colored fluid within the abdomen of the birds. The abdomen is grossly dilated.

Also, there is evidence of hydropericardium, or an accumulation of fluid within the heart sack, up to about 10 cc of fluid.

There is a dilation of blood vessels going to abdominal organs and into the lungs. Kidneys can also appear enlarged. The birds have also what Owen described as "perihepatic fibrinous pseudomembrane," a yellowish kind of membrane which surrounds the liver.

Classical finding

"This is a very classical finding in the birds that I open up from ascites," he said. "It's what gives us the indication at least by circumstantial evidence that the fluid which is accumulating in the abdomen is coming from the liver."

Owen said, "There really are some tremendous ramifications of this, the amount of fluid accumulating in a bird's belly."

There is also evidence of "cardiomegaly," or enlargement of the heart, particularly the right ventricle.

Some believe there are "caustic agents," which may cause the disease. But, according to Owen, while polychlorinated biphenyls, phenol disinfectants, and phytotoxins can aggravate the problem, they do not actually cause ascites.

Ascites seen

"While we have found certain agents which in certain cases can cause liver disease and ascites syndrome, this in no way, shape, or form even begins to explain a small percentage of the ascites syndrome that's seen in the world nowadays," he said.

Other agents, such as round heart, furazolidone toxicity, toxic fat, and other agents can cause primary cardiac disease and lead to ascites, but Owen believes these do not cause ascites syndrome.

"Certainly, infectious agents may play a role in the whole pathogenesis of this disease, but I for one and nobody I worked with or talked to thinks that it's going to be as simple as finding a virus and vaccinating the bird and getting rid of the disease," he said. "I think it's very, very much more complex."

Owen said that poor oxygenation of the blood because of the increased oxygen demand needed by fast-growing broilers, in addition to poor air qualilty and cold housing temperatures, spur the disease on.

Birds suffer

"The birds are suffering from an increase in pulmonary artery pressure," he said. "We're asking their heart to pump more blood into their lungs than their lungs are capable of handling."

Also, the lungs can be restricted because of lung damage or something preventing the blood from getting through.

The blood, because of the added pressure placed on the heart, "backflows" upstream. The lowest pressure system downstream is the liver — which may explain the fluid around that organ.

Until researchers can focus in on the genetics that contribute to ascites syndrome, what producers can do now about the problem is look into what can be done to slow the incidence of the syndrome by better management.

Measures

The following measures can be adopted:

- Maintain good air quality in the building at bird level.
- Follow a precise vaccination program with minimum of stress to the bird on a timely basis.
- Maintain proper temperature control in the building. Keep the birds warm. If using a curtain, raise it at night.
- If economically feasible, slow down the rate of growth of the birds.
- Control the light the birds receive.
- Get birds up and moving — walk the flock. "We tend to be so fitness conscious, so why do we not think that this might work for birds?" Owen said. "Look what it does for people. It really works."
- Prevention by genetic selection — this will take additional research.

"I think our attitude right now is one of what I call an ostrich attitude in the U.S.," said Owen. "We'll put our heads in the sand and pretend the disease is going to go away. I don't think that's going to happen. I think the reports we get from the field indicate the disease is increasing in incidence, and I think as time goes on, we're going to see the disease becoming a real, real problem."

But Owen cautioned that the answers are only forthcoming. More data needs to be collected and analyzed.

"We don't have any of the answers for you. Nobody knows. There's a lot of theories around. Theories need to be tested by factual, hard data," he said.

The work involved inducing ascites in research birds using a pressure chamber. Electrocardiograms (EKGs) will examine and look for heart problems in birds — and this may identify some birds that could develop ascites.

"The bottom line is," said Owen, "with this disease, it's my belief that the modern, fast-growing broiler is on the brink of outgrowing its cardiopulmonary capacity. And I think over the next 5-10 years, we need to spend some time ascertaining the importance of this cardiopulmonary capacity and including in our genetic selection not only fast growth but a heart and luing able to support the fast growth that we're asking of these birds.

"I don't think we've even begun to scratch the surface of it, and we have a long way to go."

Ascites is not caused by a bacteria or virus, according to Dr. Robert Owen, D.V.M., dept. of veterinary science at Penn State. Owen spoke to 25 broiler producers, equipment manfacturers, and other industry representatives Monday at the Poultry Management and Health Seminar.

Pennsyvlania's Dairy Industry, Two Pirates Make a Splash

Two Pittsburgh Pirates, Stan Belinda and Jay Bell square off in an old-fashioned milking contest Tuesday at the annual Dairy Day celebration at Pittsburgh's Market Square. Belinda was able to squeeze a few more drops from "Mary" to win the contest.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania's dairy industry was in the spotlight on Tuesday, during the annual Dairy Day festivities at Pittsburgh's Market Square.

Two Pittsburgh Pirates, Jay Bell and Stan Belinda, added to the excitement with a thrilling celebrity milking contest that kicked-off the promotion.

Belinda, the Pirate's relief pitcher, just barely won the contest over Bell, the Pirate's shortstop and a dairy industry spokesperson. The two were neck and neck throughout the five minute duel, but Belinda, with his previous experience, was able to get a few more drops of milk out of the cow.

The center of the contest, "Mary," was chauffered to the promotion by George Kudoc of Marburger Dairy in Evans City, Butler County.

The milking contest highlighted a complete day's worth of activities that included live entertainment by Woodsmoke Band, a performance by ventriloquest Ms. Udderly, princess skits, and pudding making.

More than 5,000 Pittsburgh area residents visited the square to get free product samples and dairy industry information.

Those residents were not the only visitors to Market Square. Three Pittsburgh area television stations along with the "Pittsburgh Post Gazette" were onl hand throughout the promotion to film the action.

In addition, several area radio stations dropped by to get a few sound bites with promotion visitors.

The promotion was sponsored by the Dairy Industry Association of Western Pennsylvania, Mid East United Dairy Industry Association F.O. 36, and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program.

"Calcium Nitrate —one fertilizer for both vegetables and tobacco"

Jason Pope Josiah Pope & Sons Farm
Clinton, North Carolina

"We're always looking for ways to improve crop yield and quality," states Mr. Pope, "and in 1978 we decided to try Calcium Nitrate. It was a good decision."

Tobacco: Fast response; better color and grade

"Our tobacco came through with better color and grade than ever before. We felt that our previous fertilizer tended to stay in the plants too long. It was also causing slate coloring in the leaves. Calcium Nitrate corrected both of these problems. Calcium Nitrate is really quick. It does its job in tobacco and gets out.

"Salt injury had also been a concern, so Calcium Nitrate's low salt level is very important to us."

Vegetables: Controlled response; reduced blossom-end rot

"We sidedress our peppers and eggplant in three applications, totaling 350 lbs. of Calcium Nitrate per acre. The results have been excellent. We're getting controlled response, and previous problems with blossom-end rot and fruit shedding have been reduced or eliminated. The calcium content has been a big help.

"Year after year, Calcium Nitrate is the one fertilizer that's fast and dependable for both tobacco and vegetable production. We wouldn't think of switching to anything else."

As with any fertilizer application, consult your extension office or other advisory service for recommended practice that meets local crop and soil conditions.

members, contributors and the Lancaster County government with help in "this important public-private effort".

The farmland preservation movement, both locally and statewide, was spearheaded by Lancaster county community leaders, most notably Amos Funk, back in the late 1970s. The County was the first to initiate a government agency to preserve farmland. In 1980, the Agricultural Preserve Board was formed and the first farm was preserved. In 1987, Pennsylvania voters approved a $100 million bond issue to preserve Pennsylvania farms, and today the Lancaster County Preserve Board has saved 92 farms covering 8,500 acres.

In 1988, Lancaster Farmland Trust was formed. This non-profit land trust uses only private contributions to preserve farmland. They have preserved 22 farms with a total of 1,600 acreage and have won the favor of the Plain Sects who prefer not to work with government.

"We have come a long way," said Funk "In the early days, it took us three years to preserve three farms. Recently we preserved three farms in three days."

Funk proposed that the 10,000 acres that were preserved really represented 80,000 acres because the preserved land was mostly in agriculture-zoned areas and township officials would find it difficult to change the zoneing with preserved acres in place.

Henry Garber, one of the first farmers to preserve his land, said the interest in preservation is growing. "I believe we will have more than the 20,000 acres preserved by the year 2,000," It's really taking off."

County Commissioner, Robert Breneman, said it was great to be part of the farmland preservation effort and Commissioner Jim Huber said there was no more appropriate and no more urgent area to preserve farmland than in Lancaster. Both commissioners vowed continued financial support from the County.

Potato Bug Beater

on the hills of northern Lehigh County. "I haven't given up on it; it's a good idea and I think we're on the right track to look at other ways to control the Colorado potato beetle."

In addition to the Bug Beater, there was a review of potato research on Long Island. Propane burners mounted on a tractor tool bar were used to flame overwintering Colorado beetles. The burners passed over the potato plants which were less than five inches tall. Sixty to seventy-five percent of the overwintering adults were killed with only minimal damage to the potato plants. No reduction in yields occurred as a result of flaming the plants.

Bob Leiby reviewed the status of the cryolite label for use on potatoes in Pennsylvania. On Friday, May 31st, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture declared a crisis exemption for using cryolite on potatoes. Later the same day, EPA followed with a Section 18 label. The Section 18 allows Pennsylvania growers to apply two applications of cryolite on the 1991 crop. EPA is requiring potato insect scouting and pesticide application data to be collected before they will allow additional applications.

The Bug Beater, a new machine to control potato beetles was demonstrated last week on the Handwerk Potato Farm near Germansville in Lehigh County. Highspeed fans lift insects from the crop.

Agribusinesses Sponsor Scholarship Contest At All American

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A $500 scholarship will be awarded to the highest scoring individual in the 5th annual Junior Dairyman Contest at the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show, in the Farm Show Complex, Harrisburg.

The contest to be held Sept. 24 and is open to 4-H and FFA teams from anywhere in the United States.

One of the many program features for youth at the All-American, this contest is sponsored jointly by the Animal Health Division of Pfizer Inc., of New York City, and the Arm and Hammer Ag Products Division of Church and Dwight Inc., of Princeton, N.J.

According to Carl Brown Jr., committee chairman, the contest gets bigger every year. It is designed to make young people more aware of the many skills needed to be successful at dairy farming or working in a dairy related industry.

Participants will be scored on their knowledge of 10 different subject matter classes. These range from herd health to sire selection, from business management to reproduction management, and from current dairy issues to feed and dairy product identification.

If the scholarship winner is not continuing his/her education, the winner will be permitted to use the money for another appropriate endeavor such as purchasing breeding stock. Prizes will also be awarded to individuals placing second through tenth.

Last year's contest represented both FFA and 4-H, with 23 teams from Maine, New York, Ohio, Maryland and Pennsylvania.

The Junior Dairyman Contest is one of four events which attracted more than 1,400 youth at the 1990 All-American Dairy Show.

More information about the contest is available from the All-American Show Manager, Charles A. Itle, Farm Show Complex, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408. Phone (717) 787-2905.

to the entire body of Congress for their consideration.

For 30 years we have been suggesting some form of a milk supply management program for dairy farmers. Several years ago we felt a Two-Price Plan (a form of Two Tier) would be the answer. This Plan has now become known as a "Two Tier Pricing Program."

After many years of frustration, we now have an opportunity for a true supply management program for dairy farmers to become a reality.

Many of us, including many dairy farmers, realize that a Two Tier Pricing Program should have been included in the 1990 Farm Bill. However, milk prices had not declined enough at that time to get enough people excited to take proper action on the problem. It's a disgrace that dairy farmers have had to take such a financial beating in order to have Congress consider making proper changes.

During the last few months various states have taken steps to correct the inadequate prices being received by dairy farmers. However, it is impossible for any state agency to take sufficient action to correct the entire problem of inadequate prices. The U.S. Congress is the only body unless all dairy farmers across the U.S. unite) to take the needed action that is necessary to correct the dairy crisis.

Congress must take action now because in past years the Administration in power usually picked their Secretary of Agriculture from the agriculture business world. The secretaries have come from such giants as ConAgra Inc. Once in power, the secretaries seem to do more to improve the bottom line of food companies instead of developing programs that would return a fair price to agriculture producers.

Just because the House Subcommittee is conducting this hearing is no reason for dairy farmers to assume that a final resolvement will be forthcoming to correct their financial crisis.

While most dairy farmers will not be at the hearing to speak their peace, it is important for every dairy farmer to contact their U.S. Congressmen and Senators to let them know what you want in the final legislation that will be considered by Congress.

As a dairy farmer, please don't depend solely on your farm organizations to do the job for you. Already it appears the National Milk Producers Federation is suggesting a milk support price of $11.60 per cwt. and a Two Tier Pricing Program as a standby program. This falls way short of what is needed by the American dairy farmer.

You, as a dairy farmer, have been telling us that you need an average blend price of between $15-$15.50 per cwt. You will not receive this price on a $11.60 per cwt. floor. You should tell your Congressmen that you want a permanent Two Tier Pricing Program - up front - with a floor price of nothing less than $14 per cwt.

Pro Ag and other organizations have Two Tier Pricing Programs that will return an adequate price to dairy farmers.

You must contact your Congressmen today and inform them what you want. Tell your Congressmen that you don't want any subsidy payments from the government. Tell them you want a realistic Two Tier Pricing Program that is based on the national average cost of producing milk.

The Two Tier Program that is being suggested by us will cost the U.S. government far less money than the present program and more importantly the program will give dairy farmers a chance to stay in business.

As a dairy farmer - please do your part today. Contact your Congressmen.

We will do our best at the hearing.

A copy of the article concerning the death of a young farm child in the May 18, 1991 edition of Lancaster Farming was received in our office.

This is just another reminder of how children could be involved in accidents on the farm.

The Wellness Committee of the Farmers Home Administration has also realized that certain hazards do exist on the farm and that education is needed to reduce farm accidents.

As a public service project, the Wellness Committee of the Farmers Home Administration is promoting an organization called Farm Safety-Just Kids. The purpose of the program is to make our children more aware of the hazards that exist on the farm.

If you have any questions regarding this program, please contact: Farmers Home Administration, 850 North Fifth Street, Allentown, PA 18102-1731. Phone Number: 215-770-0575. Attention: Michael J. Angerson.

Jacques Scoreboard

6770
More bushels per acre is the name of the game. And in 1989 on-farm trials, 6770 hammered Pioneer hybrid 3475 for a six bushel per acre yield advantage. Fast starter with strong legs.

8210
An all-around proven performer, 8210's statistics show very good staygreen, excellent vigor, strong stalks and roots and very good stress tolerance. With this one's record, it's no wonder the opposition hates to face it.

4770
It's no wonder this one was voted rookie of the year in 1989. 4770 clobbered opponents, scoring seven to nine bushels more per acre than top competitors in 1989 on-farm trials. Imagine the power 4770 could deliver on your team!

Potato Growers Get Beetle Control

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff Tuesday announced that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has granted a special pesticide exemption that will enable Pennsylvania farmers to prevent serious damage to their potato crops.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture had requested the specific exemption to provisions of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA) so that farmers could use sodium fluoaluminate (cryolite) to control infestations of the Colorado Potato Beetle.

"The department asked for this exemption because the beetle can destroy an entire potato crop," Wolff said. "The adult beetle lays eggs after the potato plants emerge, and then the larvae feed on potato plants. The results can be catastrophic to a crop."

Applications of cryolite are subject to various conditions and restrictions. Potato growers who want to apply cryolite under the specific exemption should contact their county agent, or the state Department of Agriculture's nearest regional office or departmental headquarters in Harrisburg.

Regional office numbers are listed below:

Meadville - (814) 332-6890; Williamsport - (717) 327-3550; Tunkhannock - (717) 836-2181; Gibsonia - (412) 443-1585; Altoona - (814) 946-7315; Summerdale - (717) 787-3400; Creamery - (215) 489-1003.

In addition, farmers can obtain information on cryolite use from the department's Bureau of Plant Industry in Harrisburg at (717) 787-4843.

Half Million Acres Signed To USDA Programs

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Donald M. Unangst, state executive director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said Pennsylvania farmers enrolled 516,354 acres in the 1991 acreage reduction programs for wheat and feed grains.

Based on a USDA report, the total crop base acreage includes 50,340 wheat acres, 425,372 corn acres, 3,698 barley acres, 32,264 oats acres, and 1,481 acres of grain sorghum.

The 1991 Farm program participants contracted to reduce their corn, sorghum and barley crop acreage bases by 7.5 percent; wheat by 15 percent; and zero percent for oats. Unangst said 38,778 acres could be removed from crop production and designated as Acreage Conservation Reserve (ACR).

Under the 1991 programs, farmers have the option of planting other permitted crops on up to 25 percent of the crop acreage bases (CABs) of underplanted participating crops, without suffering reductions in CAB.

According to Unangst, Pennsylvania farmers intend to plant 13,304 acres of "flex" acreage to soybeans, 468 acres to minor oilseeds and 2,059 acres to other crops.

Participating producers will be eligible for price support loans and deficiency payments.

"When they enrolled in the programs, wheat, feed grain, upland cotton and rice producers were allowed to request 40 percent of their projected 1991 deficiency payments in cash," the ASCS official said.

Unangst also released initial aggregated signup figures which show Cumberland and Northampton counties led in these preliminary statistics.

York Co. Farmland Trust Seeks Funds For Lauxmont Farm

YORK (York Co.) — The Lauxmont Farm properties south of Wrightsville, have received noticeable attention in recent months from those looking at the land for its development potential. More recently, the American Farmland Trust, the only national non-profit land preservation organization dedicated to the protection of our nation's farmland, together with the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, York County Farmland Trust and several other regional and national land conservation organizations, have moved into the arena with a plan to protect the land from the guillotine of mass development.

Denise Smith, a Wrightsville area resident, is spearheading a local effort to raise funds on behalf of the York County Farmland Trust to be earmarked for use in this monumental preservation project. A portion of the project will include securing the land and then placing conservation easements on it, thereby preserving the land in its agricultural and open space use in perpetuity.

The area comprising Lauxmont Farms, represents a portion of land originally granted to William Penn by the Indians. It is situated adjacent to the Susquehanna River, sitting high above her waters with an expansive breathtaking view of the surrounding countryside, the river and neighboring Lancaster County. The Lauxmont Farm carries with it a tremendous and colorful history, and has received acclaim as one of the most picturesque places in the nation and was once considered for location of the nation's capital. This is no secret to Wrightsville area residents to whom it is well known for its charm and long history.

The property, comprised of six separate parcels, has been a luring possibility for developers recently because of the panoramic views of the river that the property offers. In order to avoid the land's development and preserve the environmental integrity of the area, York County Farmland Trust, with the assistance from interested area residents will mount efforts to raise necessary funding, in order to assist the American Farmland Trust in securing the land and placing conservation easements on it.

To date no official appraisal value has been given to this project, modest speculations have put the conservation easement project price on these 1392 acres of land between $4 to 8 million.

Denise Smith wanted to see to it that, York Countians and Wrightsville area residents were able to play a supportive and important role in the efforts being undertaken to protect the land, the environment, and the history of the area.

Anyone interested in contributing to the effort to preserve the Lauxmont Farm lands, can send checks payable to the York County Farmland Trust, c/o Lauxmont Farmland Preservation Project, The Concord Office Center, 3601 Concord Road, York, Pennsylvania 17402. All contributions are tax deductible and will be earmarked for the Lauxmont Project.

Anyone having questions about the project or about membership in the organization should contact the York County Farmland Trust at (717) 757-7012.

Arnold Donates Hog To College

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — Delaware Valley College has received GW07 Command 42-1, pictured above, from Leon Arnold, a Lebanon Co. Yorkshire swine breeder. Arnold made the donation at the recent 71st Production Sale. A strong supporter of the college's swine program over the last 10 years, Arnold has contributed to many of the bloodlines present in the college's herd today.

The purebred Yorkshire swine herd at Delaware Valley College is used as a teaching unit in which students gain hands-on experience in running a farrow-to-finish operation. Classes study the breeding, feeding, and marketing aspects of swine production, and select replacement and sale animals. The swine herd has been based on productivity and performance since its inception, and the Command boar, purchased by Arnold at the 1987 National Yorkshire Boar Test for his productive base, will be a tremendous asset to the Delaware Valley College Yorkshire program.

Farmers Work Together To Get Results

BATAVIA, NY — When diary farmers work together, they can accomplish great results.

That's the lesson farmers are learning in 1991, a year when milk prices plunged to low levels of more than a decde ago. However, by working together, farmers throughout New York and the Northeast have been able to win important victories to raise their milk prices above the federally set minimums that are less than the farmer's cost of production.

Some of these victories involve changes to provide relief for the current economic problems faced by dairy farmers and will also improve procedures for price relief in the future.

The organization that provided the catalyst for higher milk prices is the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency, Inc., best known by its initials, RCMA. RCMA is the largest dairy organization in the Northeast, with 22,000 dairy-farmer members in 11 states. RCMA provided dairy farmers with a vehicle to work for higher prices during these economically devastating times.

"Through the strength of RCMA's membership, we have obtained premiums for dairy farmers in several states," said Carmen L. Ross, RCMA's executive director.

The programs to supplement dairy farmers' incomes are essential to the survival of many dairy farms in the Northeast, where farmers are caught in a financial squeeze between falling milk prices and rising costs of milk production. Milk prices had climbed to record highs in early 1990, but plummeted to the lowest prices since 1978 by the early part of 1991.

James N. Putnam II, vice president of Farm Credit Bank of Springfield, Mass., projects the average New York dairy farmer will lose $24,988 per farm in 1991. When evaluated on a cash-flow basis, the average New York farmer will have a deficit of $1.31 for every 100 pounds of milk he produces, he said.

"Obviously, many farmers can't afford to stay in business when they are losing money," RCMA's Ross said.

According to Cornell University economist Stuart Smith, New York would lose approximately 10 percent of its dairy farmers over the next 18 months. That means about 1,000 farms going out of business. And Putnam predicts the current low prices would weaken additional farms that would go out of business in 1992 or 1993.

Those kinds of predictions concerned RCMA leadership, so they began working last fall, before farm prices plumged to develop a plan to provide economic relief to keep farmers in business.

The key to RCMA's strategy was New York State, the third largest milk-producing state in the nation and the largest source of milk in the Northeast. Pricing programs in other nearby states could not be successful unless New York took action. RCMA focused its energy on using the Rogers-Allen Act, a law on New York's books since the 1930s that allows the commissioner of agriculture to establish minimum milk prices if low prices threaten to disrupt the markets.

RCMA developed the necessary petition to the commissioner and proposed a statewide milk marketing order to establish minimum milk prices. The statewide order would not interfere with Federal Order 2 milk marketing area or the state-run Western New York marketing order. The proposed prices would be in effect only during months when the federal order prices are below proposed state minimums. RCMA proposed that Class I milk have a minimum price of $14.50; Class II milk would carry a premium of 40 cents, up to a maximum price of $11.50; and Class III milk would carry a 20-cent premium up to a maximum price of $11.30.

Class I milk is used for fluid consumption. Class II milk is used to produce soft dairy products, such as yogurt, cottage cheese and sour cream. Class III milk is used to produce most cheeses, butter and powdered milk. Farmers receive what is called a blend price, which is a combination of the three prices based upon the total percentage of milk used for each class in the market.

During April, the commissioner conducted a hearing on RCMA's request. A decision is expected this month.

Meanwhile, RCMA members were applying constant pressure to New York legislators, who responded by enacting emergency legislation to allow the commissioner to establish interim milk prices until he reaches his decision. Those interim prices were announced May 9 as $13.85 for Class I milk (which is $1.39 over the June federal order price) and $10.30 for Class II and III milk, effective June 1.

And, as RCMA predicted, other states in the Northeast were waiting for New York to take the lead. Exactly one week after New York announced its interim prices, Vermont's new Milk Commission established a June over-order price of $1.39 for Class I milk and 30 cents for Class II and III milk. Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire and New Jersey followed suit. Pennsylvania has had a pricing program, and recently conducted a hearing to consider extending it. Connecticut and Rhode Island are considering programs, too.

"By obtaining the minimum prices in New York, we were able to also get higher milk prices in the other states of the Northeast," Ross said. "The beneficial effect has multiplied far beyond New York State's borders. We're very pleased to have helped so many farmers obtain more money for their milk."

RCMA created the blueprint for over-order pricing when it established a premium program in 1987. That program operated for two years and paid approximately $70 million in over-order premiums to its dairy farmer members. Now the dairy organization has again proven its value to dairy farmers by working for the creation of premium programs when milk prices are low and farmers need the financial help.

"This is exactly what RCMA was designed to do: create programs to generate more dollars to dairy farmers for their milk," Ross said. "Through RCMA's efforts, states have created economic safety nets for their milk producers. RCMA members can be proud of the results of their hard work to es-from standard application rates or spills from mixing sites.

Survey Will Show If, How Wells Are Contaminated

A crucial aspect of this survey, according to Gerald M. Heistand, assistant Chesapeake Bay administrator with the district, is that farmers are not singled out. The survey will include both homes and industry in the groundwater recharge unit as well.

Surveys in the past concentrated on farmers, because it was assumed they caused the problem, according to Heistand. "Right away that's saying the farmers are the problem. Because we were only surveying the farmers.

Survey homeowners

"So we as a district are demanding that they also survey the homeowners, industry, and everyone who uses pesticides in a certain area," he said.

Part of the study will cover a groundwater recharge area for a local community water source. Heistand said the survey will take into account all the land areas where rain water gets into the community well.

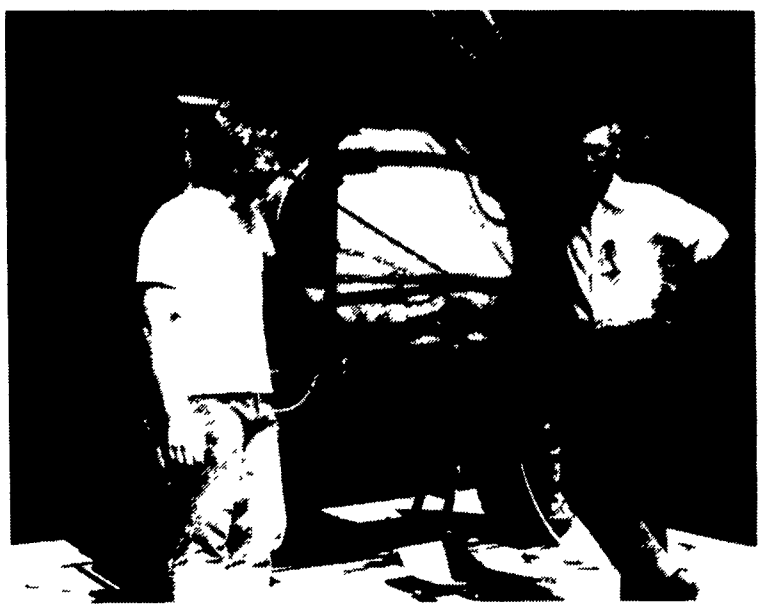
"The feeling is," he said, "homeowners may be using as many pesticides and as many nutrients — nitrogen — on their lawn as a farmer uses in his cornfield. And if that's the case, then they should be carrying the burden of the blame as much as farmers."

One of the reasons the survey must be conducted is to assist the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in determining exact water quality levels in area water quality supplies. Tests will be conducted on small, medium, and large farms.

Water contamination

In the past, tests could only account for water contamination of pesticides at the level of "parts per million."

Jeff Frey, right, shows containers of pesticides used in his operation. Earl Mull, of the Lancaster Conservation District, interviews Frey about pesticide use on the Willow Street farm. (The milk tank is not used for milk storage on the farm.)



"We think that most of our pollution to wells is due to spills and mixing areas too close to wells," said Gerald M. Heistand, right, of the Lancaster Conservation District. At left is Jeff Frey, holding the frame to the pesticide tank.

The study will include wellhead protection and will take into account all the places where surface water gets in the main well. Here, Jeff Frey inspects his well next to his Willow Street home.

Heistand said that, with new technology, tests can be taken to see pesticide levels in water at parts per billion.

"They're still working on the threshold levels which are allowable," said Heistand. "They still don't know what is an allowable level for all of our pesticides. How can you say it's a problem until you know where that threshold is?"

Heistand said that, if the survey does indicate contamination, then it "doesn't mean that the water is unfit to drink. It just means that you found them," he said. "Just because I have atrazine in my water does not mean that it's unfit to drink."

Homeowners implicated

If there is well water contamination, and homeowners are implicated, then further studes may be required by the EPA. Changes in application rates or the types of pesticides applied may be necessary to obtain improved water quality.

If well water is contaminated, and farmers are implicated, the survey will determine where the contamination is coming from. Is it the application rate on the fields? The mixing site? Some other source?

According to Heistand, if the mixing site is implicated, then measures will be instituted to contain spills and rinsate for proper disposal, and to locate mixing and loading areas further from well locations.

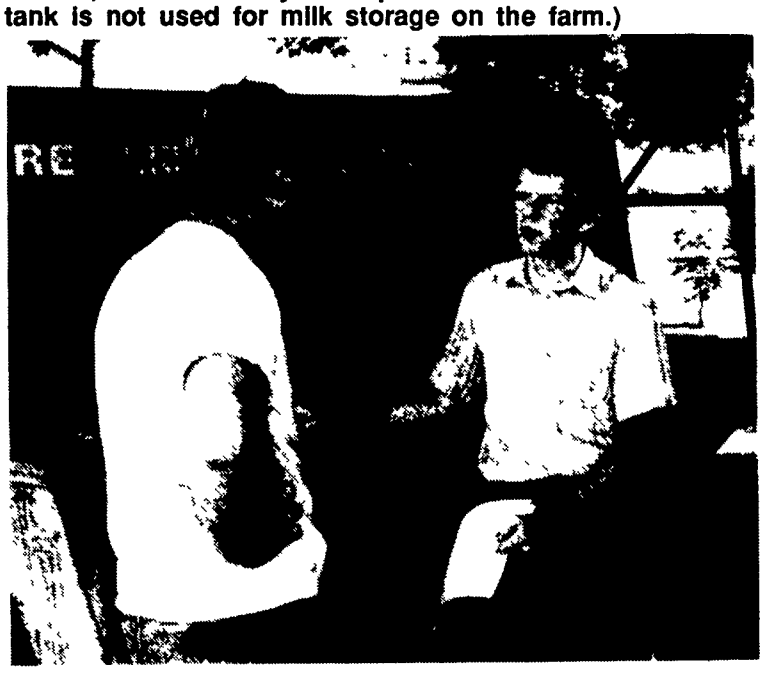
If the label application rate is implicated, then the EPA may order the manufacturer to change the rate or come up with other alternative chemicals for the farmer to use.

What is happening

Either way, the water tests and survey will help determine what is happening with the water.

In Jeff Frey's case (who operates a 525-acre cash cropping and custom farming operation near Willow Street), the survey interested him because of increasing environmental concerns.

"I do my mixing here," Frey said, pointing to a shed. Several years ago, he remembers trying to contain an accidental spill. Now, he is "curious to see now if any of that pesticide would have leached into our water supply, and, if it did, at what levels," he said.



The pesticide groundwater survey conducted by the Lancaster Conservation District with the state department of ag will show the differences in farms and how the pesticides are applied. In the end, the conservation district can help the farmer make the application "farm-specific." Here, Earl Mull, right, talks with Jeff Frey at Frey's farm at Willow Street.

Tests were already conducted on the farm in a six-acre plot. Another interview for a larger, 65-acre segment was conducted recently at Frey's farm.

Mail results

"One pet peeve of mine is people that take surveys and never tell anyone about the results," said Heistand. The district is helping to facilitate the collection and dissemination of the information from the survey. "We have in the budget money to mail results to participants."

After the survey is completed in the fall this year, the results will go to the state department of agriculture. The information will be used for the state to come up with a state pesticide groundwater management plan.

"Any state that does not come up with this plan is going to come under EPA federal regulations," said Heistand. "And the EPA may come down with some stringent regulations saying that you can't use certain restricted pesticides on a countywide basis."

According to Heistand, farmers may become angry if this happens, because the land in Lancaster County differs from farm to farm.

Farm differences

The survey will show the differences in farms and how the pesticides are applied. In the end, the conservation district can help the farmer make the application "farm-specific."

"(Frey's) is a cash-cropping farm," Heistand said. "This may be affected differently than one with a lot of poultry, swine, beef, or dairy."

The state plan will pre-empt any federal EPA plan and give the farmers more freedom in how they manage pesticide use.

Information collected includes:

- How pesticides are applied on the property (for example, yourself, neighbor, commercial applicator, or other).
- A map of septic tanks, cesspool, pesticide storage area, disposal area, mixing area, pond or lake, sink holes, other storage areas, etc.
- Primary source of drinking water.
- Irrigation water location.
- How the well water is used and if water tests for nitrates were completed.
- Type, location, and use of other types of storage tanks on the property.
- If other water tests on pesticides or other contaminants have been conducted and when.

• Soil tests and questions related to manure storage and use.

• Location and distance of mixing sites, storage sites, and other pesticide sites from primary and secondary wells.

• Questions related to storage and use of pesticide equipment.

Survey confidential

The county survey will be kept confidential for individual farms, and names and addresses collected.

"We think that most of our pollution to wells is due to spills and mixing areas too close to wells," said Heistand. "And if we can show that, we've gained a big step forward in the use of pesticides."

Heistand said that, even without the survey, there are many farmers who are voluntarily cutting back on using pesticides. "So this surey is going to point that out — the number of people that are concerned about the environment that are using less on their own volition," he said.

If there is a problem with the use of pesticides at labeled rates, then "we're going to have to go back to that company and say, 'can you find an alternate to this pesticide, or can we use it at half the labeled rate?' In other words, we'll have to come up with solutions. But that's better than saying you can't use it at all."

Heistand said he is afraid EPA may tell farmers "you cannot use this restricted pesticide in Lancaster County because we found it in the wells. And what we need to be able to say is we know whey it was in that well and, therefore, we can give you ideas of how to keep it out of any other well."

Heistand believes that farmers should be concerned. "My response is, if I'm polluting my well with pesticides, I'd like to know it, because I drink that water. So I as a farmer should feel good about learning more about what I do that affects my water."

Editor's note: After the survey is completed, Lancaster Farming plans to publish the results when they appear.

Ice Cream Home Run Winners Recognized

Farmers Work Together

tablish these programs, many of which will have a lasting impact on the dairy industry of the Northeast.

"Only by working together have farmers been able to achieve these results," he added. "Our membership, representing about 90 percent of the dairy farmers in the region, is our strength. If we had all dairy farmers in the Northeast as RCMA members, we would have been able to accomplish our objectives much easier.

"Those who aren't members are being used by their handlers to work against RCMA and their state legislatures who are trying to help dairy farmers," Ross said. "All dairy farmers, whether they are members or not, have reaped the benefits of RCMA's efforts to obtain higher prices. Now all non-RCMA-members should join the organization with their fellow dairy farmers in the Northeast. We proved we can succeed by working together."

Dairy farmers must work together for further milk price increases, Ross stressed. RCMA believes the prices being established are a step in the right direction. Farmers need and deserve fair prices for their product.

"What we have achieved so far is to set an economic safety net under dairy farm prices," he said. "There is still more work to do to ensure the future of dairy farming in the Northeast. By working through RCMA, dairy farmers can help create a brighter financial future for themselves."

RCMA membership is free to all dairy farmers. There are no dues or assessments, which are prohibited by RCMA's by-laws. Farmers who would like more information about RCMA membership may call the RCMA office in Batavia, N.Y., toll-free, at 1-800-634-3723.

Behind The Scenes With Farm Bureau Woman Of The Year

Homestead Notes

EVA MARTIN
Maryland Correspondent

SMITHSBURG, MD — Barbara Winters told her family and friends that she would never marry a farmer, but she did! Today, she holds the title "1990 Farm Bureau Woman of the Year."

She was born and raised on a farm but it was a rare occasion when she had to feed calves or milk. Her mother had an off-farm job, and Barb, being the eldest child, found herself doing the cooking, cleaning and baby-sitting.

After her marriage, she also had an off-farm job until her first child was born. During this time, her husband, Sam, was employed by his father on the family farm.

When Sam's father retired from the farm in 1974, Barb and Sam purchased the farm, including machinery and cattle. In the early years, Barb still did not need to go to the barn to milk, as Sam's father would come over and help.

Gradually, farm chores became a part of her life. With the purchase of the farm, she inherited a chicken house that was a pet project of her mother-in-law. Barb says, "I hate the chickens, but the customers beg for farm fresh eggs, so I keep at it." She has approximately 250 layers and 50 fryers. She washes and candles her eggs and puts them in the spring house where customers help themselves on the honor system.

Then feeding calves was added to her list. Her mother-in-law would come watch the children while she made her rounds with the calves. Later they purchased an intercom system, so she could keep close tab on her children while working outside.

Today, Barb and Sam have little off-the-farm help, and Barb finds herself in the milking parlor four to five hours every day milking their 100 head of Holsteins. Most evenings, she milks alone while her husband does feeding or works in the fields. During the day, she scrapes up the barnyard, and does a lot of the total ration feeding of heifers and cows in various feed lots.

They have three children, Kelli, 21, who is a senior at Virginia Polytech Institute, majoring in dairy science and nutrition.

Staci, 18, will attend Hagerstown Junior College as a freshman this fall with a scholarship in volleyball and basketball. She hopes to major in accounting.

The Winters' son Greg is 14, and a sophomore at Smithsburg High School. His thoughts for the future turn toward the hog farm rather than dairying.

As soon as their children met the age requirements to join 4-H, Barb encouraged her children to participate. She felt they would learn to broaden their horizons in areas other than dairy farming. "I always felt, just because their father had chosen a farming occupation for a living, they didn't need to feel they were stuck on a farm," Barb said.

Kelli and Staci were inspired to have 4-H projects in gardening, cooking, sewing, dairy steers, and just about anything except hogs. The 4-H hog project became a favorite of their brother, Greg.

Their children were also encouraged to participate in school sports, band, and clubs. Their achievements in 4-H and school are evident by the number of trophies and awards displayed in their home. One of the most frequent awards received was for outstanding 4-H record books. Their record books are complete with detailed expense accounts, pictures and stories of their varied projects and will be treasured for years to come.

This family has touched the hearts of many farm families in the Cumberland Valley. Their son, Greg, was born with cystic-hygroma. This is a rare form of cysts growing in the lower jaw and throat that fill with fluid. He has had more than 15 operations, since birth, and will still need to have more. The tumors will continue to grow until he reaches maturity, and then hopefully they will remain dormant. The doctors hope the tracheotomy, which he had had since birth, can be done away with as he reaches his 20s.

In those early years, their hospital bills were insurmountable. Their insurance covered $35 of Greg's $350 per day room. Today, because of an open registration of an insurance company through Agway, they have better insurance coverage and are able to keep on top of the huge medical bills. Barb says their faith, and the caring of family and friends has helped them through.

Their old country farmhouse is getting a facelift. They began remodeling one room at a time. Now, they are adding a family room, office and garage area. The old deteriorating brick is being replaced and new windows have been put in place. Barb is looking forward to the day this job, along with its dirt and clutter, will be completed. The well-kept farm and homestead quickly catch the eye of many motorists traveling south from Smithsburg to Interstate 70.

Barbara Winters feeds the calves. The family purchased an intercome system so she could keep close tab on her children while working outside.

This is a remodeled room in the country farmhouse, which is getting a facelift.

Deteriorating brick in the old farmhouse is being replaced and new windows have been put in place.

FRESH MUSHROOMS ARE AN EXCELLENT FOOD CHOICE

The next time you want to feel like royalty, eat a fresh mushroom.

Once reserved for Egyptian pharoahs, Roman warriors, and French kings who called them "food of the gods." Today mushrooms are readily available in most supermarkets.

Every year Americans slice, dice, saute or stuff more than 500 million pounds of the common white variety of mushrooms. Mushroom consumption has more than doubled over the past 10 years.

Because they are high in fiber and low in calories, mushrooms are an excellent food choice. One pound of the white mushrooms has only 125 calories.

Mushrooms are reasonably priced, but compared to other produce, they have a short shelf life. To get your money's worth, you have to do your part to keep mushrooms fresh.

For best results, mushrooms should not be refrigerated in the same container in which you purchase them. If you put them in a brown paper bag and curl the top closed, the mushrooms will keep from four to seven days in your refrigerator.

Because water encourages bacterial growth which leads to spoilage, you should not wash the mushrooms until you are ready to use them. Cut them up last if they are destined for a salad. Use an egg slicer to cut them up quickly. It's not as high-tech or as fast as a food processor, but you will get more uniform results.

Mushroom connoisseurs may have noticed over the past few years that their favorite mushrooms are not as white and fresh-looking as they used to be.

Mushrooms used to be washed in sulfites to prevent browning. However, some people with asthma went into respiratory shock when they ingested too much of this chemical compound. In 1986, the Federal Drug Administration banned the use of it on all fresh produce and salad bars.

Some people think the bigger the mushroom is, the better it tastes. But there's no difference in flavor or texture or freshness. Size is due to genetic factors or growing conditions. Large ones are great for stuffing and small ones are better suited for hors d'oeuvres and salads.

Rebecca Blank Crowned Chester Princess

NOTTINGHAM (Chester Co.) — Rebecca Blank was crowned the 1991 Chester County Dairy Princess on June 1 at Herr Foods Inc., Nottingham. Becky is the seventeen-year-old daughter of Elam and Dorothy Blank of R.D. 2 Parkesburg, and is completing her junior year at Octorara High School.

Noel Scheib was named Chester County Alternate Dairy Princess, and is the eighteen-year-old daughter of Clyde and Alda Scheib, West Seven Stars Rd., Phoenixville. She graduates this June from Owen J. Roberts Senior High School.

The contestants were judged by three judges on appearance, poise and personality, speaking ability and dairy knowledge. For the competition, contestants were required to present a three to five minute speech, promoting milk and the dairy industry. Becky pricked our thoughts with imagining toast without butter, a baked potato without sour cream or butter, or lasagne without cheese. She then went on to tell us of the nutritional value of milk and its importance to our good health, ending with a reminder to drink milk.

Following her speech, Becky was asked an impromtu question. "What do you think can be done to improve family unity in American homes." Becky's answer: The family needs to learn to work together and solve their problems at home. It's important to work side by side and to sacrifice to each other and to love."

Here is the entourage of princesses, including the dairy maid, front and alternate, middle back. Also pictured here are the judges.

Noel's speech was made complete with a hand-cut and hand-painted puzzle including the four basic food groups of grains, meats, fruits & vegetables and milk. The key piece to the puzzle is to look for the "REAL" seal in dairy products and only genuine wholesale products when selecting food for good nutrition.

Following her speech, Noel answered the same impromptu question. Noel's answer: You should have faith in a higher power, faith in God, or faith in your family. Believe in each other whether it be the father or mother, the brother or sister, support each other.

Reigning over the evening was Miss Lauri Hicks 1990 Chester County Dairy Princess. In her final remarks she highlighted the past year of meeting new people and appearing at special events. She personally thanked her alternates, coordinator, and family for their support as well as the support of the Chester County Dairy farmers.

The audience of 75 family, friends and farmers was entertained by the Maryland Upper Shore Dairy Princess, Cindy Fell, as she gave her award winning presentation depicting a gypsy woman that convinced her client to drink milk to prevent osteoporosis.

Throughout the coming year, Becky will appear at banquets, schools, fairs, and non-farm groups, promoting milk and handing out recipes. Both young ladies will be attending the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Training Seminar in July at Lycoming College, Williamsport.

In September, Miss Blank will represent Chester County at the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Pageant held in Camp Hill.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

"C'mon in the truck; I want to show you something," offered the Farmer one beautiful evening a few weeks ago.

He headed the pickup toward one of the more distant hayfields, where he had earlier spotted an elusive small band of migratory birds feeding on insects and seeds disturbed by the hay cutting.

Last year, I'd missed seeing the bobolinks during the first haycutting, their time of migration to more northern nesting sites. But a few of the little black, white and yellow birds still flitted around the field late that day, dining from the thick windrows of alfalfa and grasses. By morning they had departed, winging onward toward a journey's end miracuously navigated by an instinct within each small, feathered body.

Science has long been fascinated by the phenonmenon of migration. There's an aura of romance about a species instinctively and collectively taking wing, to fly thousands of miles absent of any of the technological, navigational or communications marvels in which we humans put so much stock.

Recent not-very-scientific observations by this farm wife have uncovered some interesting patterns of migration around the farmstead. Some are perhaps instinctive and species specific. Like the cats.

This time of year, a barn cat or two brings forth the usual, seasonal litter of kittens. These feline mothers keep their babies well hidden at first. But as the kittens grow roly-poly and more demanding in their appetites, a migratory trail of furry babies begins snaking toward the milk dish at the barn.

At least one of the more tame mother cats annually follows her nner instincts on a more lengthy migratory pattern, one which ends on or near the basement porch. This year's porch migrator is Silky, a petite first-time mother with two chubby black and white kittens.

While both adorable kittens are still fearful of us human house inhabitants, experience warns that in due time they will be shredding the ferns on the patio, playing tag around the lawn chairs — and migrating right into our laps.

Meanwhile — and this I never understand — mice manage to migrate on an ongoing basis from the fields into the house. Probably thumbing their bewhiskered little noses as they pass by the snoozing cats.

And although not blessed with feet or wings, inanimate objects regularly establish and follow migratory patterns around the farmstead.

Like pens, for instance. In order to keep decent, fine-point pens around, I hide 'em. Otherwise, the best ballpoints regularly migrate from the office desk drawer. They roost on the kitchen counter, find refuge on the barn office desk (where there is plentiful cover in which to hide), nest in pockets of clothes headed for the laundry and wing off with the college student, never to be seen again in this life.

Beverage mugs migrate all over the place, too. Not collectively, like great flocks of birds, but one by one.

One on the basement woodstove. A matching one on the calf barn sink. A pair of plastic, insulated ones on the milking system "brain." Occasionally they turn up in more isolated spots, like a corner of the greenhouse bench, or the floor of the pickup truck, or an upstairs bedroom window sill. Rule of thumb is that only chipped, cracked, handle-less or unbreakable species of mugs are allowed to undertake migratory journeys, on penalty of severe "mugging" to rules breakers.

Equipment parts and tools migrate, many of them making rest stops along the journey at a most unlikely (I think) sanctuary — my kitchen counter. Currently pausing at the kitchen refuge are one ailing but undiagnosed flashlight, five brass pins for a silo unloader, a small, heavy box labeled "power train components" — and a green and white minnow fishing lure.

Like all migratory species, our household items sometimes meet untimely endings. The pair of kid's sneakers that persisted in migrating their filthy, shredded bodies back daily to the foot of the stairs, where I regularly fell over them, finally got a decent burial in the trash can.

Looked like a classic case of roadkill.

Try this one-of-a-kind sensation during strawberry season.

I am 17 years old and recently was crowned York County Dairy Princess. I am having fun promoting the dairy industry. Recently, I went to Salem Nursery School and took our calf Pebbles. The kids had fun seeing what Pebbles eats and petting her. I was proud of Pebbles, she was a very good girl. I played a match card game that I had made using dairy prodcuts or pictures relating to the dairy industry. We sang a song that I wrote about Pebbles.

I am the daughter of Bob and Lois Jordan and I have two brothers, Mark, 15, and Tim, 11. I should thank them because they need to do more of my chores since I am dairy princess. Our family farms about 650 acres in Brogue. We milk 75 dairy cows. My best memories are doing things together on the farm.

Mark, Tim, and I go to the Red Lion School District. We enjoy swimming in our farm pond, when we find time. It feels especially good after unloading hay or straw all day. As a family, we like to go square dancing. Dad and Mom took us when we were small and we sat on chairs and watched them. Now I can't wait to go and my brothers and friends get kids together to make our own square — it's great. We also join in many activities with our church youth group, like this weekened we are having a youth dance at our church social hall. We will use the Cheers program, which is a non-alcoholic dairy beverage program.

We have a dairy and farm 150 acres. We have three children, Renae, Ryan, and Reuben. They are a big help on the farm. The farm is a great place to raise a family and have space to run. I enjoy cooking, baking, gardening, and sewing. I enjoy reading and clipping recipes from Lancaster Farming. Thanks.!

I am a farm wife. I have been married for 12½ years to William H. Ford III. We have four children, Heather, 12, Billy, 11, Michael 10; and James 6. They help around the farm a lot. We live on a farm and my husband and I also work on a dairy farm. I raise all the calves from birth. Bill is the herdsman and h also feeds all the animals. Our family has been farming for a year and a half. We have started out slow, but we hope to have our own dairy someday soon. This has been a dream of our whole family.

I am a 4-H leader for the livestock club and the Clever Clover Club. We are also involved in the dairy club and a horse club for easy riders. We own a horse, a pony, two dogs, cats, and seven lambs. Four of our lambs are for breeding projects. Last year we also raised three pigs as 4-H projects. As you can see, we like all kinds of animals.

I enjoy doing many things. I enjoy cooking, baking, horseback riding, crafts, ribbon work and paper quilling.

⅓ cup confectioners sugar
1 egg, separated
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 packages Crescent refrigerator rolls
1 cup cherry pie filling

Mix cream cheese, sugar, egg yolk, and vanilla until smooth. Arrange dough in circle, forming pizza-like crust. Press edges together. Reserve two triangles. Spread cream cheese mixture evenly over dough. Top with pie filling. Press together reserved dough and cut into four strips. Twist each strip and place on dough to look like wheel spokes attached at outer edge. Brush with egg white. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes.

This is the third time that I have entered your recipe contest.

My husband Michael is employed by Umbergers of Fontana as a farm equipment salesman. He also farms part time. He rents acreage in Lancaster County for hay, corn, soybeans and tobacco. The whole family gets involved in his projects especially the tobacco.

The Ford family from left: William, 11; Michael, 10; James, 6; and Heather, 12 years old.

I am employed as a certified nursing assistant for 17 years at Cedar Haven, a Lebanon County nursing home.

Our son Clint will be a senior in the fall at Eastern Lebanon County High School where he is active in FFA and was recently awarded the county degree. He also works part time on a dairy farm for Calvin and Thelma Zimmerman of Buffalo Springs.

Our daughter Whitney is an active 7 year old and is involved in the Bonnie Spinners, a baton group for Lebanon.

We attend Mt. Airy Union Sunday School and Hopeland United Methodist Church.

Our idea of relaxation is spending a weekend at our cabin in Sullivan County although we don't get to spend many there with farming.

My recipe for this year is one that I tasted at a Pampered Chef demonstration, which is like the Tupperware of kitchen gadgets. If you receive an invitation to one, you really must go — it's really neat.

Helen Zerr's Easy Beef Stew

Arrange 2 pounds beef cubes in a single layer in a 13x9x2-inch baking dish. Do not brown meat first. Cut potatoes, carrots, celery and onions into chunky size pieces and layer on top of meat. Salt and pepper to taste. Mix an 8-ounce can tomato sauce with 1 can water, 1 teaspoon sugar, and 1 tablespoon tapioca and pour over vegetables. Do not stir. Seal tightly with aluminum foil and place in 325 degree oven for two hours. When foil is removed, meat will be nicely browned with gravy.

ANSWER — May Ozimek, Fleming, N.J. enjoys making Chicken Gumbo Soup, but the okra becomes very slimy. She has tried using both fresh and frozen okra and wanted to know what she is doing wrong? Thanks to T.W. from Muncy who writes that okra is supposed to be slimy. Gumbo is a style of soup which is thickened with the muscilage (slime) of okra. Those who do not like the texture of okra may prefer to coat the okra with flour and fry in medium hot oil until the okra is brown and tender. Drain on paper towels then add it to the soup. If okra is fried then the soup must be thickened with flour or cornstarch, but it will no longer be true gumbo.

ANSWER — A reader from Greencastle requested a recipe for Bat Bow Fried Rice. Thanks to Eva Southard, Glen Rock, for sending a recipe.

My husband Ed and I have a dairy farm in Tioga County, about two miles south of the New York state line. We have two children, a daughter Deborah who is married with two children and has a dairy farm with her husband Dave, and our son Eugene who goes to high school and helps on our farm.

We have 293 acres of our own and rent about 300 to 350 acres. We have about 140 head of milking cows and young stock.

We also raise 70 to 80 feeder pigs two or three times a year.

Ed is the major field worker and I am the milker while he does the field work. When the field work is slow, we both do the milking.

Cumberland County To Hold June 21 Pageant

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

As I'd mentioned earlier, we are building a house to move into later this year. It was to be started in April but was delayed for two months as we waited for a permit.

The hold up was caused by two summer cottages. Our township officials felt that, even though they're only used occasionally, they needed complete sewage systems. We had to ask for an exemption and many people inlcuding DER were involved. They had a problem communicating with each other and with us.

Finally we got a permit and the next day the basement was dug and the following day the footers were poured. Now the blocks are laid and the walls coated with asphalt ready for one of many inspections by the township.

I've heard of one county where a building permit for a house costs 10 dollars instead of the one thousand that we paid. And, they do not have five inspections either during the building process.

Now we have the "lovely" job of picking kitchen cabinets, floor coverings, windows, doors, etc. It is not my idea of a fun job. About 15 years ago we built an addition to our house and there were so many frustrations. At that time, I said that I would never go through that again. But, I have no choice as a dairyman doesn't want to live anywhere except close to his cows.

It seems that we can't stay young forever and care for the dairy herd by ourselves — so our son, Philip, and his wife, Lisa, are taking over the work.

New Dairy Products Hit The Market

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Light sour cream and light eggnog recently joined a score of other products geared to cholesterol-conscious consumers. How do these lighter foods stack up?

"Evaluations by our judging panels reveal that these products don't have the same flavor, body or texture as the products they're supposed to simulate," says Sidney E. Barnard, professor of food science in Penn State's College of Agriculture. "Most people prefer to eat the real thing. If necessary, they'll eat less of it."

Barnard supervises trained dairy product evaluators who test hundreds of dairy product samples each year. The evaluators gave a thumbs-down to the light versions of sour cream, eggnog, frozen dairy dessert, yogurt, and hard cheese.

The new products are lower in milkfat and calories, which could make them attractive to consumers who wish to watch their cholesterol and caloric intake. "A light version of sour cream has up to half the fat and one-third fewer calories than the original product," Barnard says. "A light version of eggnog has as much as 75 percent less fat and one-third fewer calories."

Unfortunately, it's the fat that gives the products their desirable flavor, says Barnard. "When the manufacturers take some of the fat out, they put in milk solids and stabilizers, which tend to dilute the taste."

Like other reduced fat and reduced calorie items, the light versions of sour cream and eggnog cost more. Barnard says it remains to be seen whether consumers will find it worth their while to pay.

I'm The Luckiest Girl In The World

Kerra Allen
Age 9

So here we sit in the center of the show ring, I, on my pony, and 23 other young equestrians on theirs, each waiting for the judge to finally make up her mind.

Who would ever think that I would end up here on Misty II, a wild pony that at 14 years of age had never been gentled to ride? Now, here I am, nine years old, showing this granddaughter of Marguerite Henry's famous pony in open horse shows and loving every minute I spend with her. Who would have ever thought it was possible?

How do you think I felt when my mom and dad announced that they had just bought Misty II, a Chincoteague pony that just happened to be the true-life granddaughter of Misty of Chincoteague, the beloved pony made famous in the children's books by Marguerite Henry. I couldn't believe it. It was like having a movie star move to your house.

"Since Misty II has come to our house, I think I'm the luckiest girl in the world," Kerra Allen said.

The "Misty family" of ponies had been kept on Chincoteague after the Beebe family (the original owners) had sold them to Paul Merritt, who had his own pony farm. But now he had decided to retire and was selling some of the ponies, and he had decided that he would sell Misty II to us.

Wow! Misty II, named Misty II because she looked so much like her famous grandmother. She had almost the exact same markings as the original Misty, even the map of the United States on her side.

And so we went down to Chincoteague to pick up this 14-year old large pony, and reality set in. We knew that she had never been ridden, or hauled in a trailer, or actually had much work done to her other than to be trained to lead, so it was much like buying a wild pony — a 14 year old wild pony set in her ways. But that didn't stop us.

Back at home it was a whole new way of life for Misty II. First she had to get used to life away from the sleepy island of Chincoteague. There was more traffic on the road in front of our barn, there were rolling hills and meadows, streams and ponds to get used to. Electric fence strung around the inside of the rails was a shocking experience and taught her respect for our fences.

Kerra hoped Misty II would have a black and white foal. She did! Kerra named her Black Mist.

But "a horse is no good if you can't ride it" my parents always said, so at the advanced age of 14, Misty II began training.

My mom and dad worked her with the saddle, getting her used to the girth. We quickly discovered she was one of the most intelligent horses we had ever had. She wanted to please you, and if you took your time and were very gentle, she quickly learned what you wanted.

When it came to getting her to accept the bit, it was a slightly different matter. That snaffle bit was a foreign object that didn't taste

Birthday Party To Raise Money For Beebe Farm

Suppose horses were your absolute favorite animal and you loved Chincoteague ponies most of all. Then suppose that you were fortunate enough to own a granddaughter of Misty, the most famous Chincoteague pony of all, and she lived right there on the farm with you.

And suppose that she even had a foal two years ago, a beautiful black and white filly who loves people and likes to race around her pasture pretending that she is running up and down the sand dunes down on her island home in Virginia.

This is what happened to Kerra and Katye Allen, two of the four children who live on the farm where Misty II, the granddaughter of Misty lives near Manheim, Pennsylvania. Along with their two brothers, Andy and Kenneth, the farm has six Chincoteague ponies who reside now in the rolling hills of Lancaster County.

Kerra, at age 9, is the real horseperson of the family right now, although Katye at age 5, is busy trying to catch up with her and riding her own pony. Kerra competed in horse shows last year with Misty II both in and out of the state of Pennsylvania and won two reserve championships with the 16-year-old mare. What makes that more amazing is until the fall before, Misty II was an unbroke mare, and last year was the first year of showing for both Kerra and Misty II.

Last year also saw the start of a national non-profit organization, The Misty of Chincoteague Foundation. With the help of Marguerite Henry, the children's author who made Misty of Chincoteague famous, the organization is working to try and raise enough money to buy the Beebe Farm where the stories took place and the characters in the book really lived. Today the Beebe Farm is in need of repair and the Misty Foundation, after buying the property, plans on turning it into a museum telling the story of Misty and the Chincoteague pony.

Kerra and Misty II, (who was named Misty II because she looks so much like her famous grandmother) received many invitations last year to represent the Misty Foundation and tell the story of Misty and what the foundation is trying to do. They travelled to the Kentucky Horse Park in Lexington, Kentucky, where Misty II either frolicked in front of her audience in her special pasture or performed in the Parade of Breeds. While there a special ten minute pony ride on Misty II was auctioned off at a benefit auction for the Misty Foundation and two youngsters pressed the bidding to $85 when the Allens stopped the auctioneer and awarded a ride to both children.

Misty II and Kerra were also invited to the Washington D.C. International Horse Show, one of the largest horse shows in the East. There they were part of an educational exhibit, and Misty II had so many fans waiting to see her that the head of the exhibit asked Kerra to take her out and ride her so that everyone would have a chance to see her.

And Misty II and Kerra also travelled to the Pennsylvania National Rodeo last year where Kerra traded her English riding habit in for Western jeans, boots and a cowboy hat. At each performance, she and Misty II rode around the arena for their fans, telling of the Misty Foundation.

Since then Misty II has been on maternity leave, since on May 1 of this year she gave birth to her second Pennsylvania foal, Misty's May Day Twister, a palomino filly with a wide blaze on her face resembling a tornado funnel cloud.

There are two events coming up in the near future that you should know about if you are a Misty or Chincoteague pony fan.

There will be a special birthday party for Black Mist at the H & H Tack Shop in Annville on June 17 from 4 to 8 p.m. there will be games and food, and Black Mist will be on hand to greet her guests. There will be Black Mist T-shirts for sale at the event.

Anyone bringing in $50 of donations for the Misty Foundation will receive a special hardbound edition of the book The Pictorial Life History of Misty, autographed by Maureen Beebe, the true-life character in the story. All profits made during the evening will go towards the Misty Foundation.

And on July 13 and 14 there will be a Regional Breyerfest at the York Fairgrounds (on the 13th) and the Wild Horse and Burro Center (on the 14th). Breyer Horse Model collectors from all over will be travelling to the event for many different events.

At Breyerfest, Misty II and her new foal, "Twister" are scheduled to make their first appearance at the event, leaving the farm for the first time to help raise funds for the Misty Foundation.

Anyone interested in helping the Misty of Chincoteague Foundation can send a contribution to it at: Misty of Chincoteague Foundation, Inc., Box 4352, Charlottesville, Va. 22905.

Luckiest Girl In The World

good at all, and Misty II would clamp her jaws shut and defy gravity in order not to open them. Rather than force the issue, we smeared pancake molasses all over the bit, and soon Misty II was opening her mouth easily to lick all that good stuff that funny piece of metal.

When it came to riding, a friend came into the picture, Darlene Buller, a horse trainer, who took on the job of seeing whether a 14 year old wild horse could be gentled. But Misty II made the job easy, never bucking, and striving each day to master the signals Darlene was teaching her.

So shortly after that, Misty II became my pony, my 4-H project, and the love of my life. We ride together over the farm, and go to neighborhood shows, and enter 4-H competitions. And even though I'm only nine years old, Misty II gives me the confidence to try by best.

Misty II has another life too. Schools from all over Pennsylvania call our house and ask if Misty II will come for a visit. Right now there is a national effort to raise money to buy and restore the old Beebe homestead where Misty was born which has been targeted for development on the island of Chincoteague. Students at schools read the story of Misty and then do special projects such as "Pennies for Ponies" to help buy the Beebe home. Then Misty II comes to visit the school, showing them that the Misty line lives on. She likes to stand on her stool, and shake hands with students, and while we talk to them about Chincoteague and the wild ponies, she happily chews on the school lawn grass. She always lets all the students come up one by one and pet her before she goes back home.

I don't mind sharing her with people. At home lots of times people will call and ask if they can come out and see her, and her foals, Black Mister and Twister. We even keep a guest registry nearby and ask all her visitors to sign it.

But one of the favorite things we do is go to shows. People find it hard to believe that she's a famous horse, and that she was broke so late in years, so we usually don't tell them. We think Misty II is special, but then we think all horses are special in their own way.

Which brings us to the point were we are now, sitting in the ring waiting for the judge's decision. Misty II placed third in this class, making us very proud because this was some of her stiffest competition yet.

Misty II has come to our house, and I think I'm the luckiest girl in the world to be able to live my own horse story with such a special animal. She's here to stay, and will never be sold again. Misty II of Chincoteague is a member of our family.

Dairy Princess From Mars Crowned

She is out of this world! The 1991 Butler County Dairy Princess is from MARS -- Mars, Pennsylvania, that is! Amy Kline, daughter of William and Wilda Kline of Mars, comes from a 20-acre Ayrshire farm with a total of 60 head, nine of which Amy owns.

Amy will be a junior at Mars High School where she studies computers at the Vo-Tech. She hopes to develop her interest in computers by attending a business school after graduation.

Amy is quite active in the Butler County 4-H Dairy Club and is currently serving as president. She loves showing her cows and chances are, if you don't see Amy with her crown and banner on, she will be in the show ring. You might catch a glimpse of her at one of the four or five fairs where the Klines will be showing over the summer.

Amy was selected as Butler Co. Dairy Princess on May 18 at the Callery Fire Hall. Her skit was based on the fairy tale "Rapunzel" where she was taken captive by the wicked witch who didn't eat dairy products. She was rescued by "Prince Ivanhoe" who had the "Real Seal in his eyes" when he looked up at her.

George Cudoc was the Master of Ceremonies and he introduced the former dairy princesses who attended. 1976- Kathy Schiever Hartzell; 1987- Jean Kummer; 1988- Janelle Kennedy Callen; and 1989- Jodie Everly.

The 1990 Butler County Dairy Princess, Julie Wible, gave her closing remarks and passed her crown on to Amy. Julie's alternate, Marcy Cramner, also gave a few farewell words.

The pageant was followed by an ice cream social and a square dance.

New Butler Co. Dairy Princess Amy Kline, seated, crowned by 1990 princess Julie Wible.

Low-Fat Products Change

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — McDonald's recently began selling its new Lean Deluxe hamburger in more than 8,500 restaurants nationwide. How Americans respond to such low-fat meat products will have a major effect on the future of the nation's meat industry, according to an expert in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

"Interest in low-fat ground beef is sweeping the country," says Dr. William Henning, assistant professor of animal science. "Consumers like the idea of low-fat hamburgers. In recent surveys conducted by the Beef Industry Council, 87 percent of consumers said they'd try a low-fat beef product.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture also is enthusiastic about low-fat ground beef. The agency recently purchased more than 200,000 pounds in six different forms to test for its School Lunch Program. Student reactions will determine which of the six products are acceptable. The test could lead USDA to purchase large quantities of low-fat ground beef during the School Lunch Program's 1991-92 fiscal year.

There are several methods of producing low-fat beef. Scientists at Auburn University have developed technology that uses a seaweed extract, hydrolyzed vegetable protein, salt and water to replace the fat in ground beef.

Other technology uses starches and proteins to achieve the same end —lower fat with no loss of flavor, tenderness or juiciness.

Several questions need to be answered. "Is there adequate lean raw material? What are consumers really willing to pay for low-fat products? How must it be labeled? And how will it affect the price of other cuts?"

Henning says there also are questions about the amount of beef supply fitting low-fat specifications. The Helming Group, a beef industry organization located in Kansas, estimates that just 42 percent of world's grinding supply fits the 10 percent fat specifications, and that just over half of that amount comes from the United States. If U.S. sales of such a product were to increase substantially, low-fat ground beef could become a bonanza for foreign cattle producers.

Moos News Commentator Captures Lebanon Crown

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Perhaps you heard of her — Karen Lentz, commentator for Moos News.

The fledging newscaster was crowned Lebanon County Dairy Princess and will be assisted in her promotional duties by Karlene Mae Weaver, alternate, and Bethany Heagy, Lil' Miss Dairy Princess.

Unfortunately, network viewers could not tune into TV station WREL's Moos News because it was aired only to the audience who attended pageant ceremonies at the Lebanon County Area Vo-Tech School on June 8. Karen devised the newscast as her presentation for the pageant's competition.

The 16-year-old daughter of Robert and Sandra Lentz reported that cows shipped to Egypt helped supply milk to Desert Shield troops. She said that cheese is the only dairy product with a rising consumption rate.

On her news station, Karen also portrayed a farmer who reported that his cows stubborness to let their milk down and refusal to go to pasture are sure tales that stormy and cold weather is in the making.

All set to promote the dairy industry in Lebanon County are, from left, Li'l Miss Dairy Princess Bethany Heagy, Dairy Princess Karen Lentz, and Alternate Karlene Weaver.

As news sources, Karen used her experiences as the owner of five registered Holsteins, president of the NORLEBCO 4-H Dairy club, and treasurer of the Lebanon County Junior Holstein Club. Karen, who just completed her junior year at Northern Lebanon High School, is a member of the National Honor Scoiety, a peer counselor and a member of SHADE (Students Helping to Aid the Disabled Elderly).

She is an active member of Mt. Zion Road Church of the Brethren. She enjoys singing, playing volleyball, swimming and competing in Dairy Bowl contests.

Karlene Mae Weaver was named alternate dairy princess for the county. In her presentation, Karlene portrayed a senior citizen who praised dairy products for helping her to look and feel great "even at my age."

The 16-year-old daughter of Jesse and Darlene Weaver will be a senior at Lancaster Mennonite High School in the fall. She was a member of NORLEBCO 4-H Dairy Club and is employed by Grace Community Inc. As a member of her church youth group she is on the youth planning committee.

Master of Ceremonies Richard Kreider asked the two contestants: What is the most critical problem facing the dairy industry and what do you see as the possible solution?

Karen said the most crucial problem facing the dairy industry

(Turn to Page B17)

Guests at the pageant included, from left, former Pennsylvania Alternate Clarinda Leatherman, Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Kristen Metzker, and former Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Rebecca Sonnen. Metzker, a former Blair Countian, is now a Lancaster Countian. She relocated in Lancaster where she is a disc jockey for radio station WLAN FM 97.

Lebanon County Li'l Miss Bethany Heagy is surrounded by other contestants, from left, Jenny Maulfair, Merritt Hernley, Chanelle Horst, and Brandy Himmelberger.

Bill, Alice Kay, And The Rest Of The Herd Make Udderly Delicious Ice Cream

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — What do Bill, Alice Kay and the rest of the herd make in Ephrata, Pennsylvania?

Udderly delicious ice cream — with real dairy products, of course.

Alice Kay, the daughter of Clarence Stauffer of the National Holstein Convention, said that growing up on the farm prepared her for the seven-day-a-week job that the ice cream business demands. Three times a week, starting at 5 a.m., Alice Kay makes the ice cream.

She and her husband Bill Ulrich opened the Udder Choice at Westgate Plaza, 1755 West Main Street, two years ago. While some cholesterol-conscious individuals have been making adjustments to their diets, the trend has not affected the ice cream business.

"Ice cream is growing in popularity, as far as we're concerned," Bill said. But for those who prefer a lighter dessert, the Udder Choice offers their own home-made frozen yogurt and sherbet.

"We don't cut corners anywhere. We use the best flavorings and real whipped cream made the old-fashioned way," Bill said.

Unlike some machines that pump 100 percent air into the ice cream mixer, air is not added to the ice cream that the Ulriches make.

"You can take a dip of our ice cream and a dip of another brand and let it melt. When ours melts the glass is still full while the other glass is only one-fourth full," Bill said.

When Bill and Alice Kay, who both had experience working in restaurants, decided to open an ice cream store, they searched for ideas for sundaes. One day while Alice Kay ironed, her husband sat nearby and read encyclopedia definitions for the different cow breeds. They decided that a Holstein sundae should be two scoops of vanilla ice cream nestled in hot fudge and marshmallow. A Guernsev sundae is a double scoop of vanilla swimming in hot caramel with crushed peanuts. An Ayrshire has two scoops of vanilla with plenty of wet walnuts. Brown Swiss has two scoops of coffee ice cream topped with hot fudge. The olde two scooper vanilla with chocolate syrup and malt results in a Jersey sundae and a Red and White Holstein boasts two scoops of vanilla topped with crushed cheries and marshmallow.

"A customer who raises Milking Shorthorn insists we must come up with a sundae made after that breed," Alice Kay said, "I'm thinking about it."

The menu carries numerous specialty sundaes of which the Ulriches are proud to offer the Jigger, which is an original recipe from a popular Ephrata drugstore many years ago.

"The jigger includes cherry syrup, chocolate sauce and a secret ingredient that makes it udderly delicious," Bill said. Although he refuses to divulge the secret ingredient, he did say that the ingredient would cause most people to turn up their noses, as it seems an unlikely choice for a dessert.

While many people are udderly satisfied with ice cream served in a dish, cake cone, sugar cone, waffle cone, or pretzel cone, others like hot food. To satisfy these tastes, the Udder Choice offers about 20 varieties of sandwiches and two to three different soups each day.

In keeping with the couple's strict standards, the turkey and beef, and ham is roasted at the restaurant, not purchased precooked. Alice Kay also makes most of the soups from scratch although for a few, she uses a few frozen based-soups that she doctors with other ingredients.

"We never dreamed that sandwiches and soups would be such a bigger seller when we started," Alice Kay said. "I roast 175 pounds of turkey weekly." The hot foods are most popular in the winter time.

A basket of pretzels is placed on each table when diners are seated. "I think it adds a nice touch and pacifies customers while they wait on their orders," Alice Kay said. "Plus people always think of pretzels and ice cream as companion foods."

In keeping with the cow theme, the walls of the restaurant are papered with a cow-patterned border and numerous collectible cows fill the wall along with a collection of ice cream dippers and signs from by-gone eras.

Many of the signs are rare and are borrowed from Alice Kay's brother who collects antiques.

The ice cream dippers are from the early 1900s. Although their collection ranges mostly from $20 to $40, Bill said some dippers are selling for $1,500 to $2,000.

Because Alice Kay said that she is not good at delegating work and because neither she nor her husband want the place to lose the personal touch, the couple works at the business from 5 a.m. to 10 or 11 p.m. Their son Heath spends most of his waking hours at the store also. They have 15 part-time server employees, but Alice Kay insists on making all the ice cream, soups, meat preparation, bookkeeping in addition to waitressing.

Bill, a former disc jockey, prefers the personal contact of the business, and works with the salespersons, ordering supplies, advertising, and publicity.

"I told him, you bring in the business and I'll do the work," Alice Kay said. "We had no idea there would be so much work involved in an ice cream business. The paper work is incredible."

The long hours and hard work have been much more of an adjustment for Bill than his wife, who said, "I was used to not being able to stay overnight on vacations and leaving picnics early because we had to get home to milk the cows. Now, it's basically the same except instead of milking cows, we need to tend the store."

Because they need much more space for food preparation, the couple hopes to move their business to the family farm.

"We just bought it from my dad," Alice Kay said. Although the farm is not located on the same road as their present location, it is only a half mile away.

The couple hope to place the restaurant in the lower part of the barn. When they fix up the barn, they plan to place some of the booths in the original cow stalls.

"We want the barn to look like it did 35 years ago," Alice Kay said.

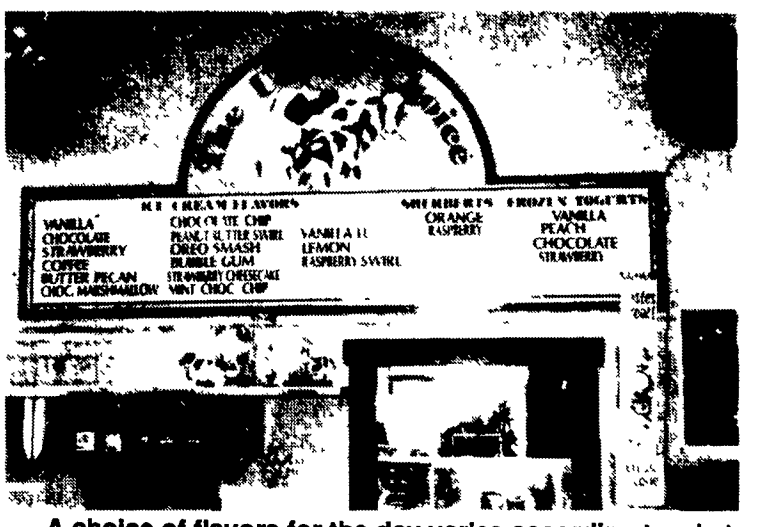
The Ulriches are really excited about the possibility of moving the business to the family farm, but said it will be at least two years before the move since they need to get a zoning variance and their present lease lasts another two years.

Although the location may change, the Ulriches plan to keep the food at the Udder Choice the same.

Bill said, "People can taste the difference between real whipped cream and the canned stuff that many other places use. Our stuff tastes better because we use only the finest and freshest ingredients, not the cheapest."

His wife said, "It's long hours and hard work, but it's rewarding to see the place become the place we dreamed of having. We have established a good reputation. The majority of our business is repeat business and we are proud of it."

Bill, Alice Kay and Heath Ulrich spend long hours at the Udder Choice, where all the ice cream, yogurt, and sherbet is made at the store.



A choice of flavors for the day varies according to what Alice Kay feels like making or what customers request at the Udder Choice.

What tastes better than bubblegum ice cream on a cone? Not much according to Heath.

is the general public's lack of knowledge about the industry. As dairy princess, she said that she would promote knowledge to the public.

Karlene said that she believes there is a lack of interest in dairy products. As a dairy promoter, she would promote dairy products.

Outgoing Li'l Miss Dairy Princess Kattie Lentz sang a song promoting milk and crowned Bethanie Heagy to take over her duties. Bethanie won the title in competition with four other contestants. The 4-year-old daughter of Luke and Carol Heagy entertained the audience with a colorful poem about Miss Muffet and the dairy cows.

Jodie Kreider interviewed each of the Lil'l Miss contestants. The audience was delighted that all five contestants insisted that chocolate milk comes from dairy cows.

Other contestants for the Li'l Miss title included Merritt Hernley, daughter of Shawn and Karen Herley; Brandy Himmelberger, daughter of Dave and Linda Himmelberger; Chanelle Horst, daughter of Kirby and Sheryl Horst; and Jenny Maulfair, daughter of Dale and Patty Maulfair.

Outgoing Lebanon County Dairy Princess Terry Hill gave a tearful farewell to the audience. Terry was lauded for her outstanding job for attending so many promotional events that she was selected by the state association as the top promoter.

In recognition for being the person that makes everything happen, Joanne Wagner, the booking chairman who arranges for the princess's appearances and chaperones, received gifts.

Judges for the contest were Judy Black, professional dairy cattle photographer; Dieter Kreig, editor and publisher of Farmshine; and Bonnie Thomas, art teacher at Conrad Weiser High School.

The meeting climaxed with an ice cream social arranged by the pageant committee that includes Barbara Lentz, Kathy Smith, Patricia Arnold, Connie Hoffer, Lisa Krall, Sheryl Horst, and Sandra Lentz.

Li'l Miss Kattie Lentz crowns her successor Bethany Heagy while 1990 Lebanon County Dairy Princess Terry Hill oversees the event.

MOM'S MEAL IN A BOWL

4 or 5 medium potatoes, peeled and cubed
1 rib celery with leaves, chopped fine
1 small onion, chopped fine
Salt and pepper to taste

Combine potatoes, celery, onion, salt and pepper in a kettle. Fill with enough water to cover. Cook until potatoes are soft and the water mostly absorbed. Do not drain.

While the above is cooking, prepare the following:

2 or 3 slices bread, cubed

In a separate pan, melt 1 stick butter and add the bread cubes, stir until nicely toasted. Beat 3 eggs in bowl to pour over the toasted bread cubes, stirring until eggs are set.

Mash the potato mixture with a fork or old-fashioned masher, just until broken up. Add 3 cups milk and the egg covered bread cubes. Heat and serve. Sprinkle with chopped parsley, optional.

If you like a thicker soup, use less milk. If you like a thinner soup, use more milk.

I was raised on a dairy farm and later married a farmer. Together we operated a dairy farm in Berks County.

While there were many times I complained about the hard work and long hours on the dairy farm, it was those cows and the milk check that paid for the farm — helped us pay for new buildings we had erected and paid for the tuition that put our two sons through college. Our older son is now in charge of the farm operations and we sold the dairy herd two years ago after the death of my husband.

I still enjoy seeing a nice herd of dairy cows grazing contentedly in a field — it brings back memories. My older son and I still live on the farm that has been in my home for 46 years. I'm now a 73-year-old grandmother.

Our family lives on a 125-acre dairy farm close to Shippensburg University. We milk 40 cows, have two horses and two dogs. We have four boys and three girls, all married but two. Over the summer months we are busy selling sweet corn, sugar peas, and tomatoes. I also have a large garden so I do a lot of canning and freezing. We all enjoy reading Lancaster Farming.

Wolff Urges Farmers To Join Nutrition Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Farmers who produce fresh fruits and vegetables can increase their market by joining the Farmers' Market Nutrition Program (FMNP), said Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Boyd E. Wolff.

The Farmers' Market Nutrition Program provides $25 of fresh fruits and vegetables to pregnant women and breast-feeding mothers who participate in the Women and Infant Children (WIC) Program.

"The Farmer's Market Nutrition Program provides important dietary requirements to needy women who might not get proper nutrition," Wolff said. "At the same time, the program expands markets to farmers who grow fresh fruits and vegetables."

The Farmers' Market Nutrition Program, formerly the Farmers' Market Coupon Program, began in 1988 as a pilot project in Erie, Harrisburg, and Philadelphia. This year, the program will serve more than 18,000 clients in 41 counties.

Farmers who sell fruits and vegetables to the public through farmers' markets or roadside stands in any of the 41 program counties can be authorized to accept FMNP checks as payment for their produce. The checks can be redeemed at banks.

Additional information can be obtain by calling the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (717) 787-5086, or by writing to Lesa Tressler, FMNP, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA, 17110-9408.

Creative Festival Offers Kaleidoscope Of Ideas

BETH PITZER
Cumberland Co. Correspondent

KING OF PRUSSIA (Chester Co.)— The Valley Forge Convention Center was the site for the Creative Festival held May 17-19. The festival offered a kaleidoscope of programs and booths for sewing, quilting, needle art, and crafts. One hundred-ten exhibitors featured their specialties. Herman Roth of Roth Exposition Group in California coordinated the event. He shared that there was a good market for this type of a festival in the area. The concept originally started in the San Francisco Bay area. He has coordinated 14 shows this year and thinks it'll expand to 20 next year.

One of the concepts that makes this festival unique is that it boasts four different shows under one roof! People interested in sewing, quilting, needle arts, and crafts can find their niche in the large exhibit area. The show drew approximately 10,000 people in its first year at King of Prussia. Next year a woodworking show will be added. He credits its huge success to cooperation from the town of Lansdale and from Penn State Cooperative Extension.

One of the pieces in the college of festival activity was an exhibit of vibrantly colored quilts by the Philadelphia Area Contemporary Quilt Artists. Twenty-five quilts varying in design from very contemporary to traditional lined the one side of the center. The creative designs varied from realistic to ultra-creative. This small group of studio artists choose their medium as quiltmaking. Their goal is to promote individual design and professional integrity of artists as quiltmakers. For more information about the Philadelphia Area Contemporary Quilt Artists, call (215) 635-3909.

Another picture in the college of activity was the schedule of classes. With a bubbly, personable style, Donna Babylon presented a class on "Interior Ideas - Easy Projects to Sew for the Home." She's the owner of Windsor Oak Publishing Company, a new business venture she recently started. One of her most interesting pieces was a window valance she calls the "Twisted Bustle." She shared that this started as a fluke, but ended up as a new style on the cover of her new book! It's a creative, new-fangled approach to making a valance. And it's very easy!

Donna's table was filled with beautiful prints and colors focusing heavily on rose and blue. Her repertoire of ideas included a country-looking dark blue table topper, square and round pillows, and a dainty bolster pillow. She shared some very basic information about window treatments. For example, when making valances, measure the fabric to be 2½ -3 times the length of the curtain rod.

Donna Babylon, author of Home Decorating for Quilt Makers, shares directions for making her "Twisted Bustle" Window Treatment.

One of the biggest focuses was the extraordinary assortment of exhibitors. One of the most interesting and unusual exhibits was created by Sherry Guimond of Fantasy Park Fiber Designs. She showed bright strings of color called "Luxury Loops." Luxury Loops are handmade trims for necklaces, trims, and wreaths. She's been making these handmade trims for about three years, but has been a weaver for 15 years! Sherry traveled from Washington D.C. where she is a master weaver. She's a member of the Potomac Craftsman Guild.

Special Needs Clothing and Having a Home-Based Business were the two themes featured by Penn State Cooperative Extension. Special Needs Clothing is a program offering clothing suggestions for people whose physical handicap involves hands, adapting pants

Jayne Hess Crowned Adams County Dairy Princess

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

BIGLERVILLE (Adams Co.) — Jayne Hess won the Adams County dairy princess crown during annual pageant ceremonies held June 8 at the Biglerville High School.

The 18-year-old daughter of John and Bonnie Hess, Jayne is a graduate of New Oxford High School. Her high school activities included student council, yearbook staff, hockey and track. Both an FFA and 4-H member, Jayne enjoys exhibiting dairy cattle, horseback riding, writing and public speaking. She plans to attend Millersville College, majoring in journalism.

For her entertainment skit, Jayne adapted the Goldilocks and the Three Bears fairy tale to include a dairy product theme. During her on-stage interview, she said that she enjoys farming because of the chance to work with the land and God's creatures. In response to questioning as to why dairy farmers are leaving the industry, Jayne cited dropping milk prices as the key factor.

Jayne is the third daughter of the Hess family to earn the county's dairy princess crown. Sister Jennie was the 1985-86 princess and now serves York County as the dairy extension agent. Josie, dairy princess for 1987-88, is herd manager for the family's Jo-Bo Holstein Farm, Tall Oaks Road, Gettysburg.

Kathy Reever, 18-year-old daughter of Bruce and Jean Reever, was named the alternate Adams County princess. Her family resides on Ke-Holtz dairy farm, East Berlin.

A graduate of Bermudian High School, Kathy is employed by the Conewago Veterinary Clinic. She was the 1989-90 Adams County beef queen and is active in both Adams County Beef Producers and the national Santa Gertrudis associations.

Asked if she would consider being a farm wife, Kathy replied positively, explaining that she believes working together on a farm helps strengthen a couple's marriage. she sees low milk prices and increasing costs of inputs as the major reasons for the loss of dairy producers from the industry. For her presentation, Kathy posed as a busy doctor, reviewing cases in which milk and dairy products could play an important nutrition role.

Other contestants for the princess crown were Melissa Wenger, daughter of Kenneth and Rose Wenger, Littlestown, and Susan Woerner, daughter of Ralph and Norma Woerner, Gettysburg.

In a special portion of the pageant, six Little Miss contestants entertained an appreciative audience with dairy-adapted musical numbers. Each was also interviewed on-stage by emcee Donald Lohr, who chatted with them about their favorite dairy product and favorite kind of cow.

Named the Little Miss winner was Erin Deputy, 5, daughter of Mark and Beth Deputy, Bermudian Creek Road, East Berlin. She was crowned by outgoing Little Miss Tiffany Holtzinger.

Also competing for the Little Miss title were Amanda Clowney, 5, daughter of John and Peggy Clowney, Gettysburg; Sarah Gieron, 4, daughter of Mark and Ester for braces, or special considerations for a Mastectomy. Many more ideas were offered. The Home-Based Business portion of the exhibit was developed by Winifred McGee of Lebanon County. Brochure gave tips on turning talents to profit, looking at the advantages of a home-based business, and starting your own business. Contact your local Extension Office for more information about these two areas.

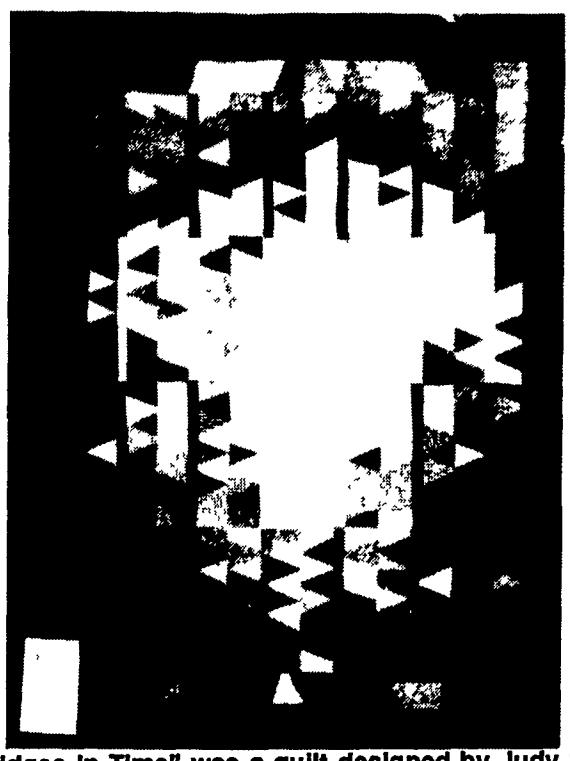
The first year for the Creative Festival was quite a success. From exhibits to classes and special events, there was something there for every artistic taste. Plans are being made to hold the festival in the same location next year.



"Bridges in Time" was a quilt designed by Judy Smith Kressley. She and many other artists from The Philadelphia Area Contemporary Quilt Artists exhibited their creations.

"My dairy farm is located on rolling terrain in Reedsburg, Wisconsin. After the first cutting, I used the Aer-Way on my thinning alfalfa stand to get the fertilizer and water into the ground. The second cutting was noticeably better with thicker and leafier alfalfa. I would recommend the Aer-Way to other dairy farmers."

I have tried many of the recipes printed in Lancaster Farming over the years. I always check in the B section of the paper when it comes in. I love Joyce Bupp and Ida's Notebook, too.

We are dairy farmers living in the Rising Sun, Md. area since 1959. We have seen many changes since we moved here from Chester Co., Pa., that we could write a book. My recipe is a good one to take on a picnic or a family get-together.

I'm Patty Dunkleberger, Cumberland County's 1987 dairy princess. Still living on the home farm and still working with the dairy princess committee and still promoting dairy products.

The recipe for chicken cheese ball is delicious served with crackers. I have had many requests for this recipe when I served it. It was a recipe that I made and served at several dairy functions when I was dairy princess. Try it — remember, Milk Is America's Health Kick!

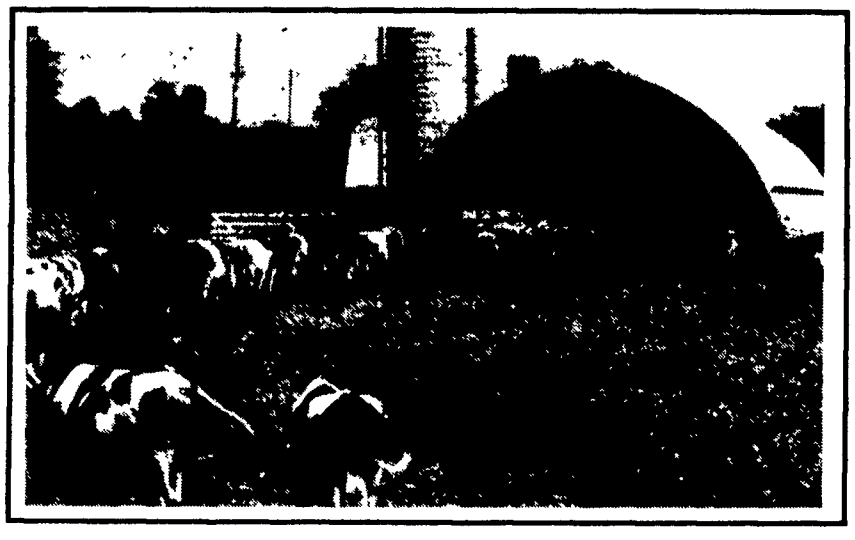
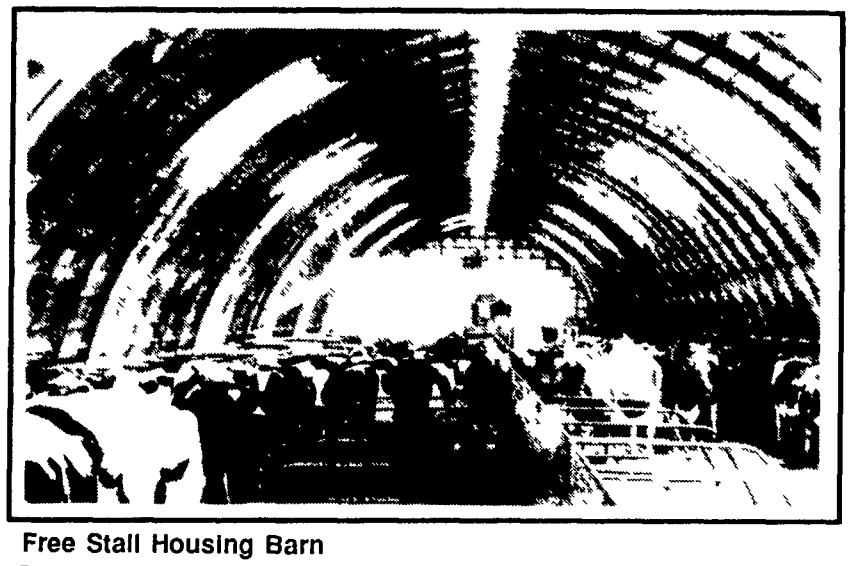
Laminated Gothic Rafters ...another quality product from Rigidply Rafters

When Strength, Economical Space and beauty are combined...

86'x240' FREE STALL BARN

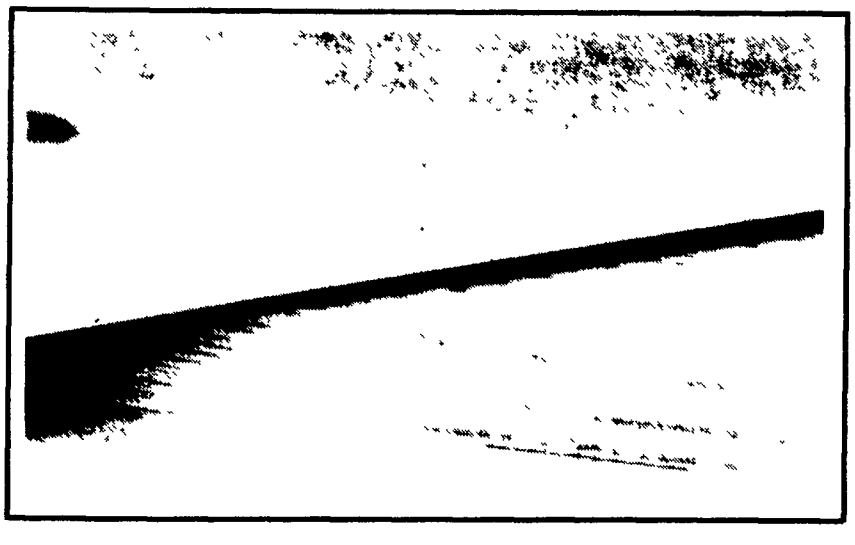
With a Rigidply Rafter's Laminated Gothic Arch building, you get versatility, economy and quality. First, all of the Gothic Arch buildings' floor space is useful thanks to the arch's high, clear span design. Second, the attractive arches have a shape that naturally resists wind and snow loads in order to provide you with more building area for your money. Third, our Gothic Arches are manufactured with structurally graded wood and bonded together with a waterproof phenol resorcinal glue. Our trained staff closely monitors the temperature, moisture content, relative humidity and pressure of our manufacture process to insure that your next Gothic Arch building order will give you many years of service.





Free Stall Housing Barn

For small and large dairy operations to help minimize condensation, making the barn healthier for your animals. Raised heel and ridge vent helps air flow to improve natural air ventilation. Ventilation is most important for your free stall barn



Our laminated rafters are stronger than ordinary nailed rafters because of our unique finger joint system The wood is joined one piece to another, along with our unique finger joint and glue system This equalizes strain and gives uniform load distribution and strength over total length of rafter Laminated rafters when erected in position, distribute roof load directly to foundation The arch is aesthetically pleasing for many types of construction and provides more efficient utilization of space

Bank Barn

For hay and equipment storage above cattle, Rigidply mechanically glued laminated rafters provide a clear span from floor to ridge. No posts or braces necessary All of the inside area is useful, yet your building has maximum resistance to winds and snow

Let us talk over your requirements

The relative economy of one roofing system over another depends on your own specific job requirements. At Rigidply we have a great variety of laminated and conventional roofing systems available to meet your needs. Along with this product selection, all hardware and heels necessary to erect your building are supplied with your shipment. Deliveries are planned to meet your working schedule and crane service is available for faster delivery and erection to save you time, work and money. We also guarantee all rafters against material defect and workmanship to insure you of your investment. Rigidply rafters result in a stronger and better looking building, too.

Rigidply laminated arch design, we believe, is the best for more air flow which contributes to the life of the barn or structure The key to this is our continuous ridge ventilation system, which allows air flow throughout the barn Air enters at the heel area and continues a natural flow of air to the top of the roof The ridge vent which is located at the top of the roof is designed to be most effective with minimum air obstruction creating a chimney effect of drawing bad air out and fresh clean air in The roof vent opening is designed to protect the opening from normal elements such as rain and snow The result is a better building for your needs and a healthier environment for your valued livestock and yourself. Another outstanding feature or advantage with having your building constructed of Rigidply Laminated Gothic Rafters is that there is very little place for bird roosting and nesting. This is very important in helping to keep a clean and desirable place to work on a day to day basis, which means satisfaction

Fully guaranteed, the perfect shape and accurate size of every Rigidply Gothic Arch results in a strong beautiful building in which you can take much pride for many years to come.

PRODUCTION PRACTICES TO REDUCE SALMONELLA ENTERITIDIS

John Schwartz
Lancaster County
Poultry Agent

Salmonella enteritidis (Se) is a food safety issue. Today's consumer is very much concerned about the quality and safety of food. Farmers also are very concerned about producing food that will not make people sick.

The recent outbreaks of food poisoning has caused the egg industry to re-examine its production practices to reduce bacterial contamination in its products. This, coupled with increased food handling educational programs, should reduce the number of food poisoning cases in the United States associated with eggs.

To reduce the level of Se in the egg industry, farmers need to adopt the following best management practices:

1. Test the poultry house environment for Se.
2. Buy pullets negative for Se.
3. Keep egg collection equipment clean.
4. Control rodents and insects.
5. Clean up broken eggs daily.
6. Remove dead birds daily.
7. Gather eggs frequently — at least twice each day.
8. Refrigerate eggs immediately after collection.
9. Reduce bird stresses.
10. Practice cleanliness.
11. Clean, wash, and disinfect between every flock.

Cleaning, washing, and disinfecting between every flock is very important. The following steps must be taken to insure your house is properly cleaned:

1. Remove all animals — chickens, cats, dogs, and rodents.
2. Dry clean thoroughly to reduce amount of water needed in wash-down phase.
3. Wash down with clean, hot water.
4. Spray and fog disinfectants.
5. Evaluate the effectiveness through testing.

Proper dry cleaning involves removing all feed and debris, blowing down dust and debris to the pit, scraping the dropping boards, and removing the manure from the pit.

When washing down the house, make sure you wash everything. Dirt protects bacteria such as Se from disinfectants.

Do not cut corners to save a penny. One cut corner will make everything else you have done a waste of time.

Finally, have one person in charge of supervising the cleaning, disinfecting, and testing program.

By starting with a clean environment, buying clean pullets, controlling all rodents, keeping egg collection equipment clean, gathering eggs frequently, and immediately refrigerating eggs and practicing cleanliness, you are doing your part of reducing Se in the food chain. By working together, we will continue to provide today's consumer with the safest, best, and most economical food — the egg.

Day On Farm Promotes Agriculture

SOMERSET CO. — The 8th annual "Day On The Farm," sponsored by the Somerset County Farmers Association, will be held on Sunday, June 23, from 1-4 p.m. at the Walker Grove Farm, three miles north of Somerset on Route 601.

Owned by father and son partners, Ray M. and Kurt Walker, the 500-acre farm can also be reached by taking the Route 601 Exit off Route 219. Walker Grove land flanks the exit ramp.

Day On The Farm is an event intended to promote agricultural education of the general public in the fun and friendly atmosphere of the family farm. Visitors during the afternoon usually exceed a 1,000, but all of them receive foods representative of all agriculture at no charge. The sponsors indicate the event will showcase the benefits of real agricultural products and that information will be passed along to others.

Continuous afternoon activities include hayrides, guided barn tours, a petting zoo, veterinarian on hand, giving of gift certificates from area grocers, and expert sheep shearing by Karl Kaufman, Bedford County.

Specialized food samples to be given are cheese, lamb, milk and milk drinks, and bags of crunchy potato chips.

Charles, Howard Counties Dominate Md. 4-H Event

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Separated by a 35-mile-wide Baltimore-Washington metropolitan corridor, Howard and Charles county residents can claim several things in common, including their time-honored interest in the Patuxent River.

This year, both counties also can claim youthful horse experts trained by a cadre of dedicated adult volunteer leaders for the 4-H horse program of the Cooperative Extension Service, University of Maryland System.

Charles County individuals and teams dominated the state 4-H horse judging contest held recently at the Carroll County Agricultural Center in Westminster. But Howard County youth starred in hippology, an event requiring total horsemanship knowledge and ability.

Teams from Charles County won all three age division championships in the 4-H horse judging competition. And Charles County team members placed first or second in both reasons and total scores among individual contestants in all three age categories.

Howard County 4-H members matched that accomplishment with their strong showing in the hippology event, winning first or second in all three age categories. Three of the top four contestants in the intermediate bracket were from Howard County.

Top finishers in the state 4-H horse judging contest:

COUNTY TEAMS

Senior

1. Charles. 2. Carroll. 3. Baltimore.

Charles County's winning senior horse judging team is now eligible to represent Maryland at the Eastern National 4-H Horse Roundup, scheduled Nov. 2-3 at Louisville, Ky., in conjunction with the North American International Livestock Exposition.

Four of the top five individuals in the statewide senior 4-H hippology contest also will represent Maryland at the Eastern National 4-H Horse Roundup.

Additional Maryland 4-H teams and individuals will compete at Louisville in horse bowl, public speaking, and demonstration events relating to horses. They will be selected during the annual 4-H Roundup on July 17 and 18 at the state fairground in Timonium.

Montour Co. District Will Start Seeding Program

DANVILLE (Montour Co.) — The Montour County Conservation District in cooperation with ASCS is looking forward to starting an aerial seeding program this fall.

The program will consist of seeding small grains as a winter cover with special concern on corn silage ground because of little crop residue.

Cover crops tie up nitrates during the primary leaching period between fall harvest and spring plantina. The small grains work as a sponge and store nitrogen for the next crop and hold it from polluting the groundwater. This practice not only benefits the quality of the soil, provides good weed control, and reduces amount of commercial fertilizer used (if cover crops are used for a length of time), but it also benefits the quality of our groundwater and helps reduce soil erosion when the ground is most susceptable to adverse weather conditions.

This is a cost share program by either the ACP program or the Chesapeake Bay Program, depending on which one you qualify for. Sign-ups will be taken by the Montour Conservation District. For more information, contact the Conservation District Office in the Community Services Building on Woodbine Lane in Danville, or call (717) 271-1140.

Environmental Respect Award Goes To Andgrow Fertilizer

EAST BERLIN (Adams Co.) — Andgrow Fertilizer has been named state winner in the Environmental Respect Awards program, honoring environmental stewardship among U.S. fertilizer/agchemical dealers. The business is one of only 31 from across the country receiving the awards in 1991.

The Environmental Respect Awards program was established and is sponsored by Du Pont Agricultural Products. The program is conducted by "Dealer Progress" magazine. An Environmental Respect Awards selection committee made up of nine industry and environmental experts reviewed the field of top dealer entries and selected the 31 state winners at a meeting in St. Louis in early May.

More than 400 retail farm supply businesses were evaluated in the competition. Criteria for the selection of the winners emphasized proper design, storage and handling procedures in the physical plant, proper application, leadership in environmental "activism," and concern for stewardship and safety among farmers and employees.

ENVIRONMENTAL RESPECT AWARDS

Earth, water, and sky are depicted in the logo for the Environmental Respect Awards program. Established by Du Pont Agricultural Products, the awards recognize environmental stewardship among retailers.

"We are an environmentally conscious company, and our support of this program further demonstrates that commitment," said Bill Kirk, vice president and general manager of Du Pont Agricultural Products. "This award recognizes the good work being undertaken by agchem dealers across the country who are clear about their own commitment to preserve and protect the environment."

The state winners will receive crystal trophies and Environmental Respect jackets for all their employees. The state winners also competed for eight regional awards worth $2,500 each that will be announced in June. A top award of $10,000 for the national winner will be given at a special reception at the U.S. Capitol in late July.

Regional winners will visit Du Pont research facilities in Wilmington, Del. Also, winners will attend the Agri-Dealer Legislative Conference, sponsored by The Fertilizer Institute (TFI) and National Agricultural Chemicals Association (NACA) this summer in Washington, D.C.

Chore-Time Offers New 48-Inch Fan

MILFORD, Ind. — Chore-Time Equipment has added a new 48-inch diameter fan to its ventilation product line, according to Michael Smith, ventilation systems product manager.

"This larger Chore-Time fan offers poultry and livestock producers plenty of reliable, air-moving muscle," Smith said. "It is designed to be used both in open-sided and environmentally controlled housing."

Smith noted the company's new belt-drive fan uses an energy-efficient one-horsepower motor designed to handle large air-moving chores. Its three-bladed propeller design offers better-than-average exhaust fan performance under normal operating conditions and when facing headwinds. When used as a air circulation fan inside a building, the fan's narrow air pattern offers users a long throw of air.

The new fan is available in two versions, Smith said. The created version of the fan can be used in free-hanging applications. The fan's slant-all version is designed for building sidewall installation.

Contact Chore-Time Equipment, P.O. Box 2000, State Road 15 North, Milford, IN, 46542-2000, (219) 658-4101.

Sales Of Animal Health Products Grows 9 Percent

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Total sales of U.S. animal health products were reported at more than $2.8 billion in 1990, representing an approximate nine percent increase from the 1989 figure of $2.6 billion. These figures represent the results of the Animal Health Institute's 1990 domestic net sales survey.

AHI represents manufacturers of animal health products, including pharmaceuticals, vaccines, and feed additives used in modern food production, and the medicines that keep pets healthy. The institute conducts its sales survey annually. Sales are reported in three major product categories — pharmaceuticals, biologicals, and feed additives. Each of these is broken down into several subcatagories.

Sales totals for the United States are based on projections made by the institute's market research committee using sales data collected from the association's member companies by independent accountant Pauline Pollick. Sales are for products priced at the manufacturere's level.

A summary of the sales data in the major product categories follows:

Feed additives: This category includes sales for all feed additives used in livestock and poultry production, including those used to control or prevent disease and enhance growth, or improve feed efficiency. This category is broken out into two subcategories: antibacterials and all other.

Feed additive sales increased approximately seven percent in 1990 with projected sales of nearly $1.4 billion. 1989 sales were projected at $1.3 billion. Sales in the antibacterial subcategory were up four percent while the increase in the all other subcategory was approximately seven percent.

Pharmaceuticals: This product category covers the sales of dosage form medicines employed in disease treatment programs for both food-producing animals and pets. In the AHI survey, pharmaceuticals are broken out in two subcategories: antimicrobials and all other.

The antimicrobials subcategory covers those pharmaceuticals which include an antibacterial alone or in combination with other drugs.

Pharmaceuticals sales increased by nearly 11 percent in 1990. Projected sales in this category for 1990 were nearly $1.2 billion and the 1989 projection was $1 million. Sales in the antimicrobials subcategory increased approximately 12 percent while an increase of approximately 10 percent was projected in the all other subcategory.

Biologicals: This product covers the sales of products used to create immunity to disease in both livestock and pets. Biologicals include vaccines, bacterins, and antioxins licensed by the U.S. Department of Agricultural's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. This category is divided into five subcategories which reflect a products's use: livestock, poultry, small animals, equine, and rabies.

Sales in this category increased approximately 17 percent in 1990 with projected sales of more than $310 million. In 1989, this projection was $266 million. Changes in each subcategory are as follows:

- Livestock: Increased by approximately 19 percent.
- Poultry: Increased by approximately 22 percent.
- Small Animals: Increased by approximately 13 percent.
- Rabies: Increased by approximately 34 percent.
- Equine: Decreased by less than 1 percent.

WE'RE AT HOME ON YOUR RANGE

Kubota's B-Series and L-Series Tractors are right at home anywhere you perform general or weekend farming, light construction and landscaping. Kubota tractors are powerful, ranging from 10-49 PTO. They're versatile, too—with quick-attach implements that simplify mowing, scraping, tractor/loader/backhoe and tilling.

Select a compact yet powerful B-Series Kubota for HST transmission, power steering and optional Bi-Speed Turn. A mid-size L-Series Kubota offers a variety of transmissions including the new Ever-Clutch and advanced Glide Shift Transmission.

For a wide range of tractor features and implement options, bring home a Kubota.

Kubota Tractor Corporation Markets a full line of tractors from 10 to 85 PTO horsepower through a nationwide network of nearly 1,000 dealers

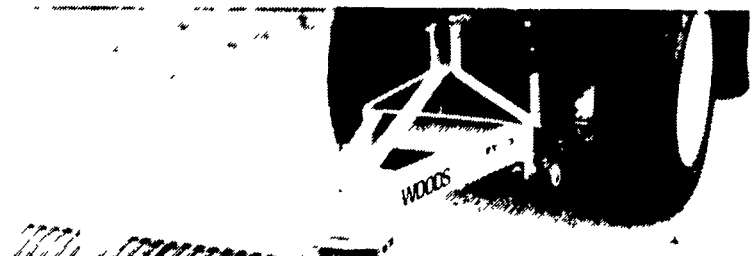
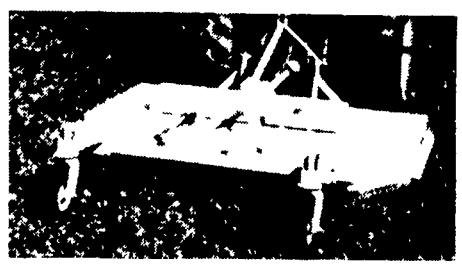
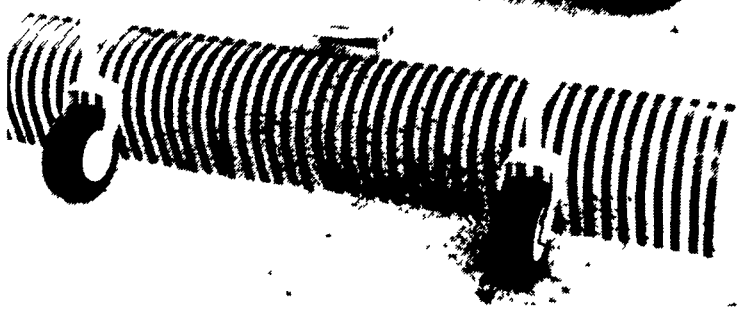
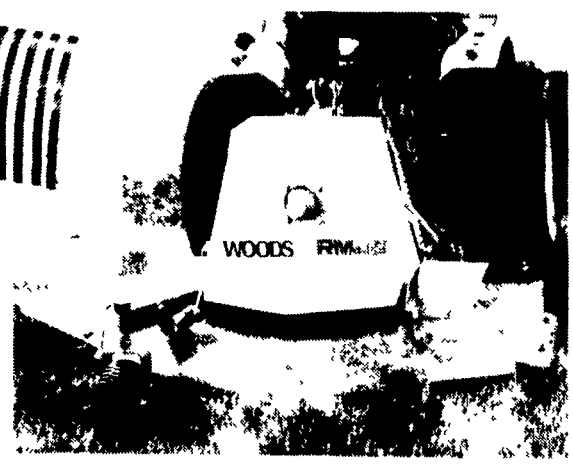
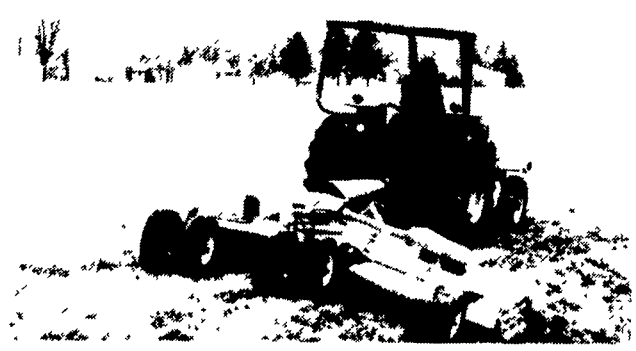
One tree doesn't make a Woods

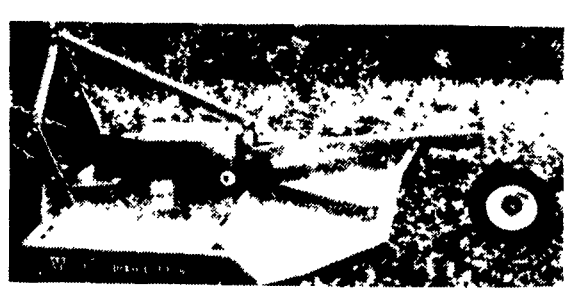


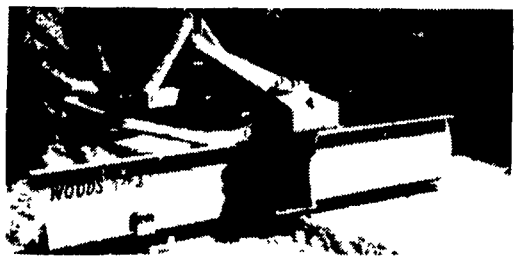












Nor does just one product. That's why when Woods introduced the world's first successful tractor powered rotary shredder back in 1947, they didn't rest on their laurels. Instead, they continued to apply outstanding engineering expertise producing equipment packed with performance, reliability and value. The results: a line-up of over 50 different products including mowers, cutters, rear scraper blades, backhoes and specialty machines. The best that money can buy.

Protect Stored Grains

Robert E. Leiby
David L. Dunbar
Lehigh Co. Agents

Preventing insect pests from infesting stored grain involves the following steps:

- Sweep up all old grain and trash from the floors and walls of the empty bins. Remove and burn or bury all grain sweepings and debris.
- Apply a residual insecticide to the floor, walls, and ceiling of cleaned bins.
- Spray the grain as it is turned into storage.
- Treat the surface of the grain soon after it is stored.

See Table 26 on page 31 of the "1991-1992 Penn State Agronomy Guide" for appropriate insecticides and dosages.

Grain storage bins should be constructed so that fans can be used to help dry or cool their contents. Outside air with a temperature of 10 degrees F or more below the grain temperature can be used for cooling. Grain temperatures 10 degrees F above or below outside air temperatures can cause condensation in the grain.

It is usually advisable not to operate fans during prolonged periods of rain or fog. For cooling dry grain, an air flow rate of one-tenth cubic foot of air per minute per bushel is usually ample.

Be sure to keep grain storage facilities animal-proof. Rodents, birds, cats and other animals can quickly contaminate clean grain.

The cheapest and safest method of controlling grain pests is prevention. Fumigation should be considered only as an emergency treatment.

Mohair Promotion Referendum

The United States Department of Agriculture has scheduled a referendum June 17-28 for mohair producers to decide whether to continue a market promotion and improvement program.

The proposed program is similar to one approved in 1986. The new program would continue to authorize deductions from producer price support payments.

If the referendum is approved by a majority of the producers voting, or by a majority of the total volume of production represented in the referendum, deductions from mohair price support payments would be at a rate of up to 4-½ cents per pound for marketing years 1991 through 1995.

The deductions will be used by the Mohair Council of America to finance advertising and sales promotion programs for mohair and Angora goats in domestic and foreign markets, and for information programs for producers on production management and market improvement.

USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service county offices will distribute ballots in early June. Completed ballots must be returned in person to the county office or postmarked by the June 28 deadline.

To be eligible to vote, a person must have owned Angora goats six months old or older for at least 30 consecutive days in 1990. A cooperative may vote for its members but, if it does so, its members then are ineligible to vote for themselves. In the 1986 referendum, 82.2 percent of the producers approved the program.

Poison Ivy

Poison ivy is a native of North America, and its natural range includes all of the United States except for the western deserts. It grows in Canada, south into Central America, throughout Japan and China, and has somehow reached Bermuda and the Bahamas.

Poison ivy grows in any type of ground except for low peaty soils. It prefers dry woods and thickets and rich alluvial woodlands, especially where the soil has been disturbed. Common on flood plains, sand dunes, bottomland, and along lake shores, it also grows along roadsides and trails, power line clearings, and especially under telephone wires and along fence rows where birds perch.

Poison ivy is often a problem in recreational areas and hay fields. Although the weedy growth itself can be a nuisance, the worst characteristic of poison ivy is the oil, called urushiol, which exists in all parts of the plant except for the pollen and the inner wood. The oil is concentrated in the plant's resin, which is at first milky or clear but turns black and tarry on contact with air. Research indicates that the plant must be broken in some way in order for the oil to come in contact with skin. Even the chewing of tiny insects can puncture the leaves and release the oil.

The oil is nonvolatile (does not evaporate), so a rash cannot be contracted "through thin air." However, dust and ash carry droplets of the oil, and breathing the smoke of burning poison ivy can have disastrous consequences. The oil is toxic all year and can be transferred to people by touching contaminated clothing, pets, tools, or firewood, by pulling up plants after the leaves have died, or even by shaking the hand of someone who has recently touched poison ivy leaves. The severity of reaction varies with the time of year, condition of the plant, and individual sensitivity.

All people have a natural immunity to poison ivy. In sensitive people (about half the population), this immunity is broken by the first contact with the oil. First contact does not produce a reaction, but causes antibodies to form in the blood. The reaction occurs with the next contact and results in dermatitis, ranging from a mild, itchy, red rash to severe blisters that look like burns. The blisters exude fluid and may become infected, but the fluid itself does not spread the rash. Severe reactions have led to death. A harmful misconception is the "Old woodsman's tale" that eating a leaf of poison ivy can produce immunity. In fact, eating a poison ivy leaf can cause death.

Sensitivity can develop at any age after any number of contacts. Adults who have never suffered a reaction and who try to prove their immunity by rubbing themselves with leaves may be unhappily surprised to learn that they are no longer immune.

Once established, the rash must run its course and will usually disappear in several weeks' time. Cortisone skin creams help reduce swelling and itching, as do solutions of potassium permanganate, baking soda, or Epsom salts. Soaking in very hot water also gives relief. Tests show that the reaction between the oil and skin is immediate, but the old-time advice to quickly shower (not bathe) with strong, alkaline, non-oily soap may remove excess poison that has not yet had time to react.

Shortly before or after contact with poison ivy, wiping the skin with a 5 percent solution of ferric chloride (diluted with half alcohol and half water) may prevent an outbreak. Soap lather allowed to dry on the skin provides a preventive barrier against the oil. Wherever poison ivy grows, one is likely to find the wild touch-me-not or jewelweed growing nearby. The juice of this plant seems to nullify the effect of the oil and can prevent a rash.

Despite the misery it can cause, poison ivy is not all bad. It gives good erosion control, and the Dutch plant it to stabilize earthen dykes. Its nectar produces a light, high-quality honey that is completely non-toxic. Livestock can eat the foliage without suffering ill effects. The seeds remain on the vine all winter, providing valuable feed for many species of songbirds, including warblers, thrushes, bluebirds, wren-tits, and flickers. Deer, black bears, muskrats, and rabbits eat the fruit, stems, and leaves. Vines growing along the ground provide thick protective cover for small mammals. Well-labeled plantings of poison ivy may help to protect natural habitats that are sensitive to human traffic, such as breeding areas of ground-nesting birds.

A Call For Action From Legislators

MESHOPPEN (Wyoming Co.) — Arden Tewksbury, manager of the Progressive Agriculture Organization (Pro AG), said, "Legislators in both New Jersey and New York State have recently passed special legislation to allow appropriate officials in their states to establish higher milk prices for the producers in each state. Governors from both states have signed the legislation into law."

According to Tewksbury, the legislators passed in the two states do not compel milk handlers from New York or New Jersey to pay an additional price for milk purchased from Pennsylvania dairy farmers. However, the New York State order has an incentive in it's provision for a fluid handler to increase his voluntary premiums to his Pennsylvania farmers versus the handler paying the premium money to the state of New York, which would not be refunded to the handler to pay his producers.

The Commissioner of Agriculture in New York State has established a minimum fluid price of $13.85 per cwt. and a minimum price on manufactured milk of $10.30 per cwt. In recent action taken by officials, New Jersey will add a premium of $1.05 per cwt. on fluid milk. However, according to Tewksbury, these premiums will affect only the dairy farmers that reside in the two states.

The Pennsylvania Marketing Board conducted a special hearing on May 9, but they only regulate the price for about 10 percent of the Pennsylvania dairy farmers.

Tewksbury said, "All of the actions by these various officials have no bearing on the price received by many dairy farmers in Pennsylvania, including many that farm in the northern part of the state.

A large amount of Pennsylvania milk is shipped out of state, and consequently this creates a serious problem for our state officials to establish a price for that milk."

FARM MANAGEMENT

FARM PROFITABILITY AND FINANCIAL EFFICIENCY

Luther B. Smith
Multi-County Farm Management Agent

Editor's note: This is the third of an eight-article series written by the five southeastern/central Penn State Extension farm management agents.

Farm profitability and financial efficiency are two areas of farm financial analysis that have become very important to the individual producer.

"Is your farm profitable?" has become an important question over the past few years. How to determine profitability and financial efficiency accurately is an even more important question. This can be accomplished through the use of your financial statements (balance sheet, income statement, and cash flow statement) and some financial ratios.

There has recently been some effort in the agrifinance industry to standardize the use of certain financial ratios and measures. This should eventually lead to better understanding of terminology and help us to draw valid comparisons between different farm business analyses.

Profitability

A common approach is to look at Net Farm Income found on your income statement. This number does not tell the entire story, but it is a good place to start.

In addition to net income, Rate of Return on Farm Assets and Rate of Return on Farm Equity will help paint a clearer picture. The follow three points will explain how to determine each of these measures and how to use the information:

1. There are two measures of farm income: Net Farm Income From Operations (NFIFO) and Net Farm Income. Net Farm Income includes the gain or loss from the sale of capital farm assets but NFIFO does not. Sale of capital assets can tend to distort farm income that is why we use two values for analysis.

2. Rate of Return on Farm Assets is measured by adding net farm income from operations and farm interest expense minus the value of operator and unpaid family labor and management, divided by average total farm assets. (Use withdrawals to determine the amount of operator and unpaid family labor and management for a sole proprietorship.)

3. Rate of Return on Farm Equity equals net farm income from operations minus the value of operator and unpaid family labor and management divided by average total farm equity.

Rate of return on both farm assets and equity measures the returns on your investment and can be compared to other investment opportunities. Realistically, they should be compared to other similar farming enterprises in your area if the farm is to continue as a farming business.

Financial Efficiency

Financial efficiency is a measure of how well you are utilizing your financial resources. This is broken down into six ratios that measure different aspects of your farm business:

1. Asset Turnover Ratio equals Gross Revenue (total income before expenses) divided by average Total Farm Assets. This is a measure of how well farm assets are being utilized to produce income.

2. Operating Profit Margin (operating income minus operat-

Weis Hosts Pennsylvania Growers

SUNBURY (Northumberland Co.) — Congressman George W. Gekas, 17th District, and Thomas Herman of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture joined with officials of Weis Markets at a dinner meeting held recently at the Country Cupboard Restaurant in Lewisburg, Pa.

The meeting, attended by more than 100 Pennsylvania growers, is hosted annually by Weis Markets. Its purpose is to explore ways to strengthen and enhance Pennsylvania's agricultural base as well as provide an arena for discussion of major trends and issues affecting agriculture.

Over the years, the Weis Grower Distributor Group — comprised of growers, industry leaders, legislators and representatives of the commonwealth's Department of Agriculture — have worked together, contributing ideas that have acted as a catalyst in determining the future course and direction of local agriculture.

This relationship, pioneered by Sigfried Weis, president of Weis Markets, has helped shape the direction of programs that have improved the production and marketing of Pennsylvania's agricultural products.

George J. Michalak, vice president, perishables, served as master of ceremonies for the evening. He reminded the guests that a meaningful contribution has been made in the communities served by Weis Markets, resulting in an economic benefit to the growers, the rural community, and to the commonwealth. In 1990, more than $65 million was paid to growers by Weis Markets for purchases of Pennsylvania farm fresh products.

FARM MANAGEMENT

ing expenses) ratio equals Net Farm Income From Operations plus farm interest expense minus the value of operator and unpaid family labor and management divided by Gross Revenue. This ratio measures what percentage of total gross income goes towards your profit margin.

3. Operating Expense Ratio equals operating expenses divided by gross revenue. This ratio tells you what percentage of your total gross income is needed to pay operating expenses. This is one of the first numbers to look at when trying to determine if your operation is efficiently run.

4. Depreciation Expense Ratio equals Depreciation divided by Gross Revenue. This number tells you what percentage of your gross income goes towards depreciation.

5. Interest Expense Ratio equals interest expense divided by gross revenue. Interest expense ratio measures how much gross income goes to interest.

6. Net Farm Income From Operations Ratio equals net farm income from operations divided by gross revenue. This ratio tells you what percentage of gross income is net farm income from operations.

Each one of these ratios can point out areas of opportunity or challenge in your operation. They can be very useful tools when evaluating and analyzing your farm business. The key to successfully using these and any financial ratio is determining what the ratios mean.

For example, what does a 75 percent operating expense ratio tell you other than that 75 percent of your gross income is used to pay operating expenses? Is that good, bad, or average? Which is the more important question to the owner/operator of the farm business?

To determine this, the ratio should be compared to similar size and type farm businesses in your area. If the ratio is compared to other businesses or other dissimilar farm businesses, it may give you distorted information. So it is very important how you use your results.

To find out more information on how to determine farm profitability and financial efficiency, contact your local Penn State Extension office.

All Panels (Many Colors) Available With 3 To 7 Day Delivery

PLY-FOIL is a very efficient form of insulation. In application after application it has proven to be extremely effective at controlling heat gain/loss, thus significantly reducing heating and cooling costs. PLY-FOIL Insulation uses an aluminum foil to reflect up to 97% of the radiant heat.

PLY-FOIL BENEFITS

PLY-FOIL products are clean, lightweight, and non-toxic; are unaffected by changes in humidity; do not shrink; and once installed require no maintenance. They do not promote the growth of fungi or bacteria, and provide no nesting support for rodent or insect pests. PLY-FOIL, which has a Class A/Class 1 fire rating, meets the fire and smoke safety requirements of most federal, state and local building codes.

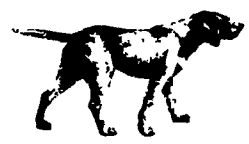
Some dogs will stop at nothing.



If you ever thought about giving your dog the run of the yard, but couldn't see putting up a big fence to do it, a DogWatch™ Hidden Fence System could be what you're looking for.

DogWatch™ keeps an "eye" on your dog by transmitting a harmless radio signal through a hidden boundary wire. A special receiver collar then warns the dog when it gets too close.

Find out more about DogWatch™ Hidden Fence Systems by calling us today.

Wet brewers grain is more than a good feed. It's a good business ingredient.

Each day, up to 100,000 U.S. dairy cows feed on rations containing wet brewers grain. That's because their owners know it minimizes feed costs while it maximizes production.

Wet brewers grain is a high-protein feed ingredient. It's always fresh, because it's delivered directly to your dairy. It fits into most programs, is easy to handle, and easy to store.

Call us today. One of our professional feed consultants will help you work wet brewers grain into your ration, so you can make it a profitable ingredient for your business.

1991 BARN PAINTING

Aim For The Best - In Coating Film Thickness

To do it right use the finest kind of bristle brush evening out the coating into a film thickness that does not peel in normal moisture stress (found on most barn siding from outside and inside by livestock or stored animal feed)

1. PREPARATION. Peeling old coatings (improperly brushed) needs to be removed The best method is simply water blasting or power washing! High volume of water - medium pressure is best! Done professionally or do it yourself, especially on the easy to reach areas This is resurfacing!!!
2. BEST NEW START ON RESURFACED WOOD SIDING After spraying on this kind of barn paint or stain, take time to pay attention to brush out in all directions to create a film thickness that will prevent future peeling & resurfacing costs & effort This film will let excess moisture breathe through it Depending on the amount of weather wear it can be recoated lightly in 10-15 years Southern exposures usually wear faster

Use Turkeys In 4-H Project

Herbert C. Jordan
Assoc. Prof
Poultry Science
Penn State

Can living space and time possibly compensate for a well-balanced ration after four weeks of age in large white meat turkeys in a small, confined flock?

In late November of 1990, two day-old hens and two day-old tom poults were started in a cage to collect manure. All birds were given less than 2 square feet of floor space per bird from day old until four weeks of age. During this time they were fed only a starter ration. Granite grit was fed after 12 days of age and fresh water in a five gallon waterer every one to three days.

From four to 16 weeks of age, floor space was increased from less than two sq. ft. per bird to greater than four sq. ft. per bird at 16 weeks of age. During this time a complete grower diet was mixed half and half with whole oats and fed free choice. Granite grit was fed once every two weeks at the rate of 2 pounds per feeding. A vitamin, mineral, electrolyte (VME) was given at 1/2 strength in the water for three days a week. When handled during this time, all birds seemed trim with no fat on them. This was done because some consumers like a lean turkey. No health problems were encountered from four to 16 weeks of age.

From 16 to 23 weeks of age, birds were given greater than eight square feet of floor space per bird and fed only whole Tyler wheat, free choice. Granite grit and VME were continued at the same level to 23 weeks of age.

No health problems were noticed to age of slaughter at 23 weeks; however, when liquid droppings started at 20 weeks of age, 1 pound of starter turkey feed with a coccidiostat was fed to each bird. All four birds lived and weighed a cumulative total live weight of 102.5 pounds after fasting 14 hours off feed. Total feed fed was 50 pounds of starter, 150 pounds of grower, 100 pounds of whole oats and 1 1/2 cubic feet of whole wheat or about 400 pounds of total feed. A cumulative total of 87.2 pounds of dressed ready to cook (RTC) weight, with giblets, was produced.

The "good" news is that all birds lived and had normal giblets with nothing condemned. No excess fat appeared in or on any bird and no breast blisters or buttons. The "bad" news is all turkey skin was white, little to no fat was seen under skin, no dimple appeared on the breasts, and pin feathers were present.

Some commercial turkey growers believe a high fiber diet (such as oats) improves overall bird health, makes a skin more firm to withstand loading and machine processing, reduces ugly soft fat under skin, improves gut health, makes droppings more normal and easy to dry and handle. A veterinarian once said he can open the gut of a bird and tell by the gut lining if it is on oats.

Any 4-H member with an 8-foot x 8-foot pen could repeat this turkey project. 4-H or FFA poultry growers must count the cost of growing turkeys over a longer time using grain that is less costly than crumbles or a mixed feed.

It's UDDERgold Weather!

Deutz-Allis Acquires White Tractor Assets

ATLANTA, Ga. — Deutz-Allis Corporation, a North American farm equipment manufacturer and marketer wholly owned by the Allis Gleaner Company (AGCO), recently announced that it has purchased the assets of the White tractor product line from White-New Idea, owned by Allied Products Corporation, subject to final approval under the Hart, Scott, Rodino Act.

The purchase includes tractor technology, trademarks, patents, production capability of tractors, parts inventories, and the assignment of all dealer contracts for the more than 600 White dealers with respect to tractors and tractor parts.

Robert J. Ratliff, Deutz-Allis president and chief executive officer, said the purchase was for cash. However, he did not disclose the amount of the transaction.

In 1990, White-New Idea produced more than 1,500 tractors in the 60- to 190-horsepower range and has the rights to the previously well-known Oliver, Cockshutt and Minneapolis-Moline tractors.

Deutz-Allis, which currently distributes its tractors and combines through a network of approximately 700 dealers throughout North America, reported sales of $274 million in 1990.

Recently, Allis Gleaner Company announced its acquisition of the Hesston Corporation from Fiat Geotech S.p.A. Hesston is a major manufacturer and distributor of hay and forage equipment in the North American market. It reported sales in excess of $100 million during 1990.

These acquisitions bring the Allis Gleaner Company's potential annual sales to more than $400 million.

According to Ratliff, the White business and dealer contracts will be administered separately and the White identity and color will be maintained. "The White name is highly respected in the agricultural industry," said Ratliff. "We are extremely pleased to have the opportunity to further enhance and foster the growth of the White tractor business in every way we can."

Plans call for the relocation of the current tractor production from Coldwater, Ohio, to a Deutz-Allis plant by 1991. "Tractor production will include our own 9100 Series high horsepower tractors, as well as the White product line of tractors," said Ratcliff. "One of our goals in this acquisition was to enable Deutz-Allis to control our own tractor production, provide us with greater economics and flexibility in the rationalization of manufacturing, and the development of new technology."

Deutz-Allis Corporation was purchased from Klockner-Humboldt-Deutz (KHD) of West Germany in June 1990 by a management led buy-out which formed the new holding entity known as Allis Gleaner Company.

Grange Calls For Ag Budget Support

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania State Grange is joining other farm organizations in requesting that the General Assembly continue their support of Pennsylvania agriculture by providing sufficient funding for the many programs and institutions related to agriculture.

Some of the funding requests from the Pennsylvania State Grange are:

- A $2 million increase to the general government operations line to accommodate adequate staffing and the supply of modern equipment to the Department of Agriculture.
- An increase of $300,000 to the Biglerville Laboratory for continued fruit harvest research.
- An increase of $200,000 to restore agricultural promotion funds to last year's level of $495,000.
- An increase of $350,000 to restore Farm Show general operations funding to last year's level of $1 million.
- $40 million to establish a new, state-of-the-art animal laboratory to replace the outdated Summerdale lab; and $3 million to Summerdale to replenish staff until the new lab can be constructed
- An increase of $500,000 for increased staff for conservation districts, as well as, $100,000 for waterway management, $100,000 for wetland protection and $100,000 for management training.
- Funding $950,000 to the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB), which is currently operating on a 1983-84 fiscal year funding level.
- $21,505,000 for Penn State agricultural extension and $21,002,000 for agricultural research.
- $140,000 to the University of Pennsylvania to stem the problem of increasing tuition costs which leads to an attrition of qualified Pennsylvania applicants.

The Pennsylvania State Grange insists that all avenues of expenditures be examined as to necessity and efficiency of administration and operation. If increased income is needed, the Grange favors an increase in the percent of income tax, provided agriculture receives its proportionate share as do others, and that this percent of income tax be reduced to present level once the present crisis is resolved.

Summertime Is Here

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County Conservation District and the USDA Soil Conservation Service suggests "good old summertime" can be an important period in every land owner's annual and long-term "conservation inventory" or planning program.

Now is the time to mow grass waterways and diversions. Properly managed, these two conservation practices make an excellent source of hay for dairy, beef, and horse farm otmers.

During this operation, check for needed repairs such as leveling, reseeding, control of weeds, and tile outlet repair or adjustment. Your "conservation inventory" should also include a check on any type of erosion that needs attention.

Presently two cost-share programs are available in Lancaster County to landowners who may want to use them. (1) is available through The Chesapeake Bay Program, and covers all of Lancaster County. Call (717) 299-5361. (2) is available in the Pequea-Mill Creek Watershed and is available through the ASCS office at (717) 397-6235.

Bob Gregory, administrator for the Lancaster County Conservation District, also suggests that several other best management practices that can be planned and discussed during this summer season are rotational pasture management, streambank erosion control, stream crossing permits, feed lot runoff control, clean water separation plans, and field work after this fall's harvest.

Planning services are cost-free. Call the Lancaster County Conservation District at (717) 299-5361 and ask for help from either the Conservation District or the Soil Conservation Service.

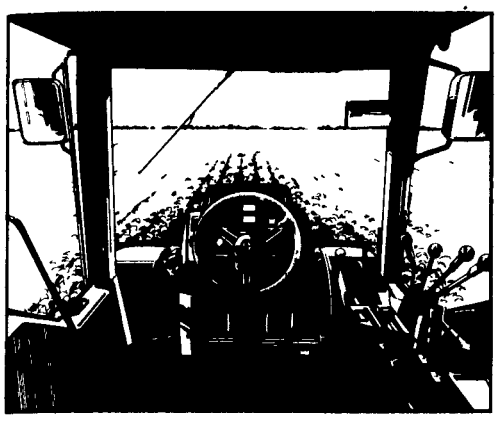
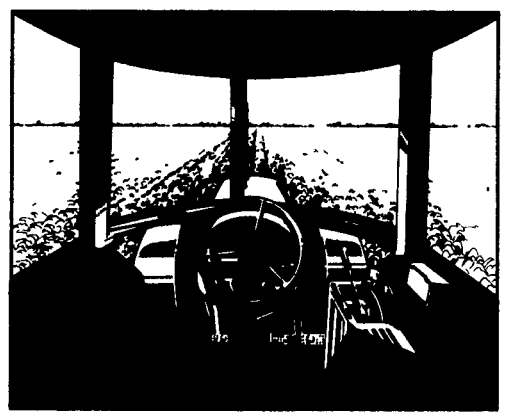
Binkley & Hurst Bros., Inc. Says NOW Is The Time To Trade Up To A New Case IH MAGNUM While We Have 5.9% Financing Available Up To 60 Months - And Special Trade Allowances On Certain Models. OFFER EXPIRES JUNE 30, 1991. Why Not Call Now? 1-800-487-2978

SEE 17% MORE. FEEL 100% BETTER.





Just one look and you'll see how the all-new cab on Case IH MAGNUM Tractors offers you greater visibility than John Deere.

Compare a MAGNUM Tractor's 48 square feet of tinted glass to Deere's 41. Compare the Case IH floor-to-ceiling front glass, one-piece side picture window, wide rear window, and unique sloping hood that gives you optimum visibility. There's no air intake or muffler sticking straight up through the MAGNUM Tractor hood (both are neatly tucked inside) And no cab post or cab cross members block your view ahead.

See for yourself why MAGNUM Tractors outperform other 130–195 PTO hp models in visibility, comfort, power and more.

Ask us about these four all-new Case IH Tractors — MAGNUM Tractors — tractors that will do more for you.

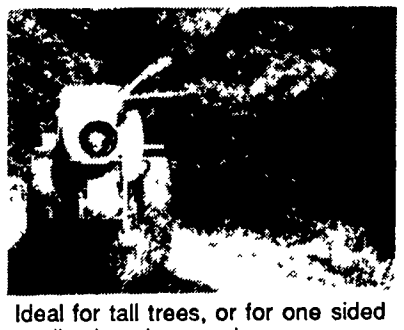
SUPER SAVINGS ON HARDI SPRAYERS

COMBI-3 and COMBI (Hy)

High-power units

The COMBI series of mist-blowers utilizes the turbo-fan blower concept which has a proven high performance record. COMBI models are built around a basic blower on which it is possible to mount different spout combinations - one spout, two spouts, or five spouts



Ideal for tall trees, or for one sided applications in very dense crops.

LP/TP PNEUMATIC SPRAYERS

The LP (mounted) and TP (trailer) pneumatic sprayers are an excellent choice for a wide range of spraying jobs The pneumatic system uses low pressure nozzles combined with high air speed Atomization takes place only when the air blast meets the liquid from the nozzle (air shear system) This ensures uniform coverage of the complete canopy even when spraying at very low volumes

TP 250 Cannon Pneumatic Mistblower (Demo.) $6,200

MINI-Variant A variety of uses

Foliage Treat Strawberries, Potatoes & Other Row Crops.

The standard MINI blower has been mounted on a high frame for the Variant mistblower range, and uses ten long flexible hoses with adjustable spouts mounted on a boom to maximize penetration in dense row crops such as strawberries, cabbage carrots, beans, onions, brussel sprouts, potatoes, lettuce, peanuts, celery, soybeans, cotton, nursery stock, etc

BEILER ENGINE SERVICE

This twin 20 hp is becoming very popular for hay balers and other applications traditionally equipped with 2 cylinder Wisc. engines and can also replace the older 4 cylinder engines on some applications.

This engine has been in use on hay balers for over 10 years and is doing a very good job. We can also mount Wisc. clutches or reductions on it for some applications. Fuel efficiency is very good.

Buy now while we still have this heavy duty engine. New model coming next year.

TORQUE AMPLIFIERS & CLUTCHES

★ New Wider Heavy Duty Super Sprag 1-1/32" Wide
★ 5 Yr. Warranty Against Sprag Failure
★ Introductory Price $695.00

We are pleased to announce a major improvement in TA strength & performance backed up by a warranty that is unmatched in the industry The 5/8" width Dana sprag which we have used over the past 10 years has proven its ability to perform under the most adverse of conditions and has achieved results that have sent our competitors scrambling to keep up By increasing the width of the sprag to 1-1/32" and caging it in a heavier frame, we now have an unmatched shock load capacity and dramatically raised our load carrying ability. Our studies have shown that 90% of TA problems are directly related to sprag failure We feel that we now have the strongest sprag & best rebuilt TA available and it will be warranted as follows*

*5 yr - 100% parts & labor against sprag
*2 ry - 100% parts & labor on remainder of unit

Our standard heavy duty TA is still available at $645.00 and caries a *2 yr. - 100% parts & labor warranty.

* Certain restrictions apply and there will be a maximum labor pay-out of $450.00

We also have units & parts available to rebuild old style TA's, including ramp & carrier sets

NEW price on ramps & carriers - $200.00

WARNING! DETERIORATING CONCRETE FROM CORN JUICE!

WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS!

Check your silo now for rotten staves. If you have been using your silo for 10 to 15 years for either corn silage or haylage, it is time to SHOTCRETE.

Lancaster Silo Co., Inc.

CONSIDER THE MANY ADVANTAGES OF POURED CONCRETE

TO ALL DAIRYMEN AND LIVESTOCK PRODUCERS WHO NEED A SILO FOR THIS YEAR'S FALL CORN CROP...

WE WANT TO HELP!!!!!!

Contact us soon to discuss "special discounts" for early orders on silos for fall. During the "lull" between our busy spring season for wilted hay storage and the even busier fall season - we are anxious to help during this period when milk prices and cattle prices are down.

"NOW IS THE TIME TO MAKE YOUR BEST DEAL ON A POURED CONCRETE SILO FOR 1991."

Don't wait too long because a good hay crop (mostly in the silo or barn) and good rains signal a busy fall silo-building season.

Since 1908, SOLLENBERGER SILOS CORP. has been providing the Silo Structures now in demand by more and more farmers concerned about "silage quality." "Nothing keeps feed better than our poured concrete silos."
